Shopper's guide to surgery

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Insurance Department Monday released a "Shopper's Guide to Surgery" urging consumers to be as suspicious of surgeons as they are of used car salesmen. Insurance Commissioner Herbert S. Denenberg, author of the guide, said each year nearly two million persons undergo needless surgery. "Most surgeons are competent, conscientious, careful and conservative," Denenberg said. "Some are narrowly trained and tend to do what they are trained to do — operate. A small minority are knife-happy, incompetent and greedy. And there is a tendency for surgeons to do their thing — which is to perform surgery."

Diplomat murdered

BOGOTA — Kjal R. Hangglof, the first secretary of the Swedish embassy in Colombia, was shot to death Monday as he was traveling in his car, police said. First reports by police sources said the diplomat was riding with three men in his Mercedes Benz in the international sector of Bogota when he was assassinated. Police said the gunman was one of Hangglof's passengers who opened fire and hit the secretary in the neck. A widespread hunt for the three men, who fled on foot after the shooting, was under way, police said.

Welfare clients indicted

NEW YORK — A man who lived in a luxury apartment and drove to his own business in a high-priced car was one of 132 welfare clients indicted Monday for defrauding the Social Services Department of more than $130,000. District Attorney Frank Hogan's office said Richard Pilla, 43, of the posh Lincoln Towers apartment complex on the west side was driving to his Manhattan burglary alarm business in a Cadillac when he applied for and received home relief. The frauds were allegedly committed by persons who illegally claim their original checks had been lost or stolen and who thus receive double payments.

Oh sister! You're in the FBI now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI swore in a former nun and an ex-marine officer as its first woman agents Monday and assigned them to a hard-as-nails training program.

Joanne E. Pierce, 31, and Susan Lynn Roley, 25, are enrolled in the FBI's regular 14-week training course required for all new agents.

"They will be instructed in the use of firearms, defensive tactics, legal matters, arrest problems, first aid, the art of interviewing, investigative techniques, laboratory matters, fingerprint work, moot court, and a detailed study of violations of federal law over which FBI has jurisdiction," and FBI spokesman said. Miss Pierce was a member of the Sisters of Mercy from 1959 until 1970. She earned a masters degree from St. Bonaventure University, Buffalo, N.Y., and was employed as a clerk with the FBI before she was accepted as an agent.

Miss Roley spent three years in the Marine Corps and was discharged last month with the rank of 1st Lieutenant.

FBI spokesmen declined to describe the young women. They said only that the new agents were assigned to the regular course all agents must take.

They were more eloquent on the subject of training, which they said will fit the trainees to meet the bureau's increasing responsibilities in criminal security and civil rights.

Hearings set for $1.7 billion in aid

Congress tackles flood relief

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Returning to work Monday following a two-week recess, Congress began immediately to tackle President Nixon's request for massive flood relief, including $1.7 billion in emergency funds.

Four minutes after the Senate convened, Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., formally introduced the administration's proposal to liberalize loan requirements for the victims of record-breaking floods in Pennsylvania and five other eastern states.

The bill makes available $5,000 in cash grants — double what is now offered victims — and reduces interest rates on repayable loans by four and an eighth per cent.

At the same time as Scott acted, the House received an identical bill, introduced by Rep. William B. Widnall, R-N.J., ranking member of that body's banking and currency committee which will hold hearings today on the legislation.

Scott's bill was transmitted to the Senate Banking, Currency and Urban Affairs Committee, where hearings will begin Thursday.

The president's request for $1.7 billion in flood aid was also sent to the House Appropriations Committee Monday.

While appropriations hearings over the $1.7 billion request are not necessary, it appears the sum is so large as to require some study by the committee, a panel staff member said.

No specific procedures have been announced as yet by the committee, but members do wish to expedite the request as quickly as possible, the aide said.

In announcing hearings on loan liberalization legislation, Rep. Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee said, "It is my intention to sit continuously for as long as necessary to finish the hearings. Immediately after the hearings, it is my intention to have (the committee) meet . . . to mark up this legislation" for full House approval.

Scott, in his remarks on the Senate floor, said "If we do not come to the support of those beleaguered residents and businesses in their time of dire need, we can expect increases in unemployment."

"Without help from the Congress we will watch areas lose their equity," he said.

Nixon's flood package proposes $1.3 billion for small business loans, $200 million for highway reconstruction, plus $200 million to the president's Disaster Relief Fund, $16 million to the Appalachian Regional Commission, $55 million to the Economic Development Administration, $12 million to the Army Corps of Engineers, and $1.85 million to the Farmers Home Administration.

Chicago's Mayor Richard Daley throws support behind Sen. McGovern

McGovern ticket gets Daley support

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, who slipped from public view for 10 days following his delegation's ouster from the Democratic National Convention, walked briskly back into the spotlight Monday to announce he would support the Democratic ticket at all levels.

"I am a Democrat," Daley said firmly, reading from a brief announcement he said he had cabled to Sen. George McGovern, the party's presidential nominee.

The statement, however, did not mention McGovern by name and Daley said he had not been in contact with the South Dakota Democrat since the nomination.

In Washington, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, McGovern's running mate, issued a statement saying Daley's endorsement "immeasurably" helped the Democratic ticket.

"As I have said many times, the mayor is a great Democrat," Eagleton said. "I was confident he would give the party his support... This important endorsement in many ways is symbolic of a unified party."

Daley criticized the challenge delegation which unseated him under the leadership of independent alderman William Singer as "lukewarm Democrats." But he said he would cooperate with the 59 challengers if they supported Democrats at the local as well as the national level.

Daley left his whereabouts during the last 10 days a mystery, denying he had gone to either Miami Beach or to his family home at Grand Beach, Mich. The mayor said only that he had been visiting his grandchildren "at different places."

Teamsters break tradition, endorse Nixon's reelection

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (UPI) — In a break with tradition, the Teamsters Union endorsed President Nixon for re-election Monday.

Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the 2-million member International Brotherhood of Teamsters, said, "We cannot and will not endorse the Democratic ticket. George McGovern has not earned the support of labor."

Former Teamsters President James R. Hoffa was paroled from prison under the Nixon administration last year and there was speculation at that time that he would support Nixon.

Fitzsimmons, asked about Hoffa's parole, said he thought Nixon's decision to pardon Hoffa was made as a human being rather than as a President seeking reelection. Fitzsimmons announced he would visit Nixon at the Western White House at San Clemente later in the day.

Governor quells second Maryland prison uprising

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Gov. Marvin Mandel and Rep. Parren Mitchell D-Md., negotiated a peaceful settlement of a disturbance Monday at Maryland Penitentiary, persuading inmates at the maximum security facility to surrender hostages and return to their cells.

It was the second time in 48 hours that the white governor and the black congressman had peacefully settled a prison uprising. Early Sunday, the two had talked rioting prisoners into surrendering at the House of Correction at Jessup, Md. where an estimated $1.5 million damage was done.

On Monday afternoon, an estimated 200 inmates at the maximum security penitentiary in downtown Baltimore seized four hostages, injured four prison employees and set a building afire.

Eight inmate representatives met with Mandel and three black officials, Mitchell, State Del. Troy Brailey and Baltimore State's Attorney Milton Allen. Mandel gave them an ultimatum to release the three hostages they still held and return to their cells or face squads of city police who were waiting outside with clubs and dogs.

A few minutes later, Mandel emerged from the prison and said "all the hostages are free and all the men are back in their cells."

One hostage was released earlier when he told the inmates he needed medication. Nathan Pashen came out of the prison blindfolded with his hands handcuffed behind him.

Pashen said he was seized in a dining hall about 12:45 p.m. EDT and robbed of his wallet containing nearly $400 in cash. "I tried to talk the guy out of taking it but he took it anyway," Pashen said.

"They handled us pretty rough, they didn't have any leadership. There was one group that was sympathetic and another that was militant. One guy asked me if I thought they were doing the right thing. Another asked me what I would think if he stuck a knife in my heart."

Allen left the negotiating session briefly and said the inmates had two major grievances — they wanted an assistant warden fired and a workable grievance procedure established.

Two of the injured were reported stabbed but most of the inmates, who disguised themselves with rags and towels around their heads, were armed with wooden clubs.

Firemen, under the protection of city police, entered the prison and extinguished a five alarm blaze that gutted a building housing the print shop in the 1,000 inmate facility.

McDade wants farmer benefits

OTTAWAY NEWS SERVICE Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Joseph M. McDade, R-10, has urged Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to assure him in writing that Pennsylvania farmers will receive the same flood benefits due victimized businessmen.

The call by McDade followed a session at the White House last Friday when an assistant to Butz verbally stated that those engaged in agriculture would receive the same loan opportunities and other relief as businessmen do.

In a letter to Butz, McDade said "I cannot impress enough upon you the scope of the disaster as it affected the farming community in the state of Pennsylvania and the 10th Congressional District."

Therefore, said McDade, he was "most reassured" Friday and now hopes to have confirmed the federal government's views towards farm losses.

The Scranton legislator said he hopes Butz's assurance would include a guarantee that if legislation is required to place farmers on the same plane as businessmen, it will be introduced by the administration.

"This may be particularly necessary in view of some alleged differences in interest rates (and forgiveness) between the Farmers Home Administration and the Small Business Administration," said McDade.

WASHINGTON — Citing intolerable increases in lumber prices, the administration placed almost all of the lumber industry under wage and price controls Monday.
Officials at two Monroe County lumber retailing companies heralded the action, affecting all wholesale, retail and manufacturing businesses with annual sales of more than $100,000.
The move by the Cost of Living Council means 62,000 businesses — accounting for more than half of all industry sales — will again be subject to wage and price ceilings.
Clifford Cramer, treasurer of Cramer's Cashway in East Stroudsburg, said he hopes the move "will roll back prices" and not allow more than a 5.5 per cent increase.

He called lumber prices "absolutely chaotic" due to strikes. Cramer added, however, the government should consider placing controls on agricultural products "to get control at the source rather than at the end product."
Richard Phillips, manager of Frisbie Lumber Co. in Stroudsburg, labeled the decision as "definitely a good idea."
Phillips said lumber costs from wholesalers have increased 25 per cent over the past four months and Frisbie has been forced to absorb the hikes.
Wayne Little, secretary of the Monroe-Pike Builders Assn., doesn't think the move will affect the number of homes scheduled to be built in the Poconos.

In the last building slump several years ago, he said, this area didn't suffer as much as the nation did because of its "uniqueness due to the second home market."
Little contended the administration "should have had some reins before this time." As president of Paradise Valley Homes Inc., Little said he's seen three hikes in lumber prices since March.
A Stroudsburg contractor, Frank Young, figured the ruling won't have much of an affect. "If they put a ceiling on lumber, roughly half of which comes in from Canada, then Canada is just going to ship lumber someplace else."
"It's just going to make a lumber shortage here," added Young.

Cost of Living Council director Donald Rumsfeld said "this action should serve notice to all exempt sectors that inflationary price increases will not be permitted."
Lumber prices have risen more than 14 per cent in the past year, spurred largely by the boom in home construction. The extensive rebuilding in the Eastern United States following destruction wreaked by tropical storm Agnes will put additional stress on lumber, Rumsfeld said.
In two other economic developments:
— The Federal Reserve Board reported the nation's industrial output slowed for the second straight month in June, but still rose .3 per cent, mainly on the strength of gains in production of business equipment and materials.

— The Census Bureau reported family income rose last year, meaning that for the first time, more than half of all U.S. households had an income of more than $10,000. But the increase was deceptive due to inflation, for although actual family income rose 4.2 per cent, the purchasing power remained about the same.
On industrial output, it was the tenth consecutive monthly increase in the closely-watched production index, and surpassed the high of July, 1969, just before the economy turned downward.

Airport massacre terrorist sentenced to life in prison

ZRIFIN, Israel (UPI) — An Israeli military tribunal sentenced Japanese terrorist Kozo Okamoto to life imprisonment Monday for his part in the massacre at Lod airport in which 26 persons died and 79 others were wounded.

The judges spared him from a death sentence on the gallows "even though we feel this is what justice demands."
The prosecution had asked the court earlier to sentence Okamoto to life imprisonment rather than death.

The young Japanese was convicted and received life sentences on each of the three charges against him that carried a maximum penalty of death.
He was sentenced to 10 years in jail on the fourth charge, performing a service for the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP), an Arab guerrilla group based in Lebanon.

Lt. Col. Avraham Frisch, president of the tribunal, said that though capital punishment exists in many countries, "including enlightened countries," Israel has observed its abolition of the death penalty in 1954 but for one case. Nazi Adolph Eichmann was hanged in 1962 after his conviction on charges of mass murdering Jews during World War II.

His wrists manacled to the two military policemen flanking him in the steel-plated wooden defendant's dock, Okamoto stood while Frisch read the sentence.

Okamoto stood stock still, staring at the wall opposite him and expressing no emotion. He appeared calm when the military policemen led him from the crowded courtroom at this army base 15 miles east of Tel Aviv.

Fischer defeats Russia's Spassky

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI)—American challenger Bobby Fischer defeated Boris Spassky in the third game of their $250,000 world championship chess match Monday and cut the Russian champion's lead to one point.

Fischer's win, his first ever over Spassky, came when the Russian conceded the game on the 42nd move, his position hopeless.

Spassky won the first two games, with Fischer conceding the first after 56 moves and forfeiting the second by refusing to show up in a protest against closed-circuit television cameras in the hall.

The fourth game of the match is scheduled for 5 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) today with Fischer playing the white pieces and making the first move.

The temperamental American was not even in the auditorium when the third game ended. Judge Lothar Schmid of West Germany opened a sealed brown envelope with a move Fischer had written down Sunday night when the game was adjourned, then moved Fischer's bishop to queen six to check Spassky's king.

The Russian took one quick look at the board, then stopped his game clock, signalling that he had given up.

Fischer rushed into the hall 10 minutes later and asked Schmid, "What happened? Has he resigned?" Schmid said Spassky had indeed given up, and Fischer rushed out again to the applause of what was left of the audience in the 3,000-seat hall.

Chess experts predicted Sunday Fischer would win the third game when he took command on the 38th and 39th moves and forced two queen checks in the fifth hour of play in a small backstage room in the same room as the auditorium.

Inmates protest at Attica prison

ATTICA, N.Y. (UPI)—Nearly three-quarters of the Attica Correctional Facility's 1,200 inmates refused to leave their cells Monday in the first major display of discontent at the prison since last fall's bloody rebellion that claimed 43 lives.

Officials closed the prison to newsmen and lawyers but said relatives and friends of inmates whose names appeared on an approved list were allowed to enter.

"I don't know how long this will last, but things are perfectly calm so far," said Supt. Ernest L. Montayne.

Two UMW officials indicted

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI)—A Washington County grand jury indicted two United Mine Workers (UMW) officials Monday on three counts of murder each in connection with the Dec. 31, 1969 slayings of union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

But the panel dismissed charges that William Jack Prater, 53, of LaFollette, Tenn., and Albert Pass, 58, of Middleboro, Ky., conspired with five others to assassinate the Yablonskis at their home in nearby Clarksville.

Prater is a field representative and Pass secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19, comprising Tennessee and southeastern Kentucky.

Each pleaded innocent at preliminary hearings. They were the first UMW officials arrested for the slaying of Yablonski following his unsuccessful 1969 campaign for the union presidency against incumbent W.A. "Tony" Boyle.

Three of the original five Yablonski suspects have pleaded guilty.

17 arrested in drug raid

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Members of the Allentown Police Vice Squad made a sweep through this Lehigh Valley area Monday in a move aimed at cracking down on drug traffic in the area.

Police said 17 persons were arrested and more apprehensions were anticipated.

Those arrested included both adults and juveniles. They were booked on charges of selling narcotics, including heroin, marijuana and LSD.

Police said the arrests came after an investigation was conducted by the Lehigh County Narcotics Information Center.

$1.5 billion in drugs seized

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A record $1.5 billion illicit drugs and narcotics were seized by the U. S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs during fiscal 1972, director John E. Ingersoll announced Monday.

A total $676,590,347 of illicit narcotics and dangerous drugs were removed from the illegal U. S. market alone by special agents, the bureau said.

The action was apparently touched off when a nurse was taken off the work rolls but it apparently was also closely tied with failure to meet 28 demands set down by inmates during the rebellion.

Montayne said the protest "appears to stem from the fact a nurse (Mary Kingsley) was terminated."

He said two temporary nurses were hired but that "funds ran out and we were able to keep one and had to eliminate the other."

Groups representing both corrections officers and inmates expressed concern that the state had not improved conditions at the maximum security prison.

A spokesman for the Attica Defense Committee (ADC), a group of lawyers representing inmates suspected of leading last September's disturbance, said "You wouldn't get 900 people locking themselves into their cells over a single incident. It is the whole situation that is involved. This termination may have precipitated the incident, but it's only part of the reforms they need and want."

IRA makes offer for truce

BELFAST (UPI)—The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army suspended operations in the Belfast neighborhood where the cease-fire collapsed eight days ago and said if the British troops would pull out, a new truce might be achieved, IRA sources said Monday night.

They said if Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw was willing to pull British troops out of the Lenadoon housing estate and return to the situation before the confrontation between soldiers and Roman Catholic residents July 9, the IRA would be willing to talk about a new cease-fire.

Unofficial contacts between the IRA and Whitelaw's office have been maintained since the cease-fire broke down, the sources said.

Sporadic gunfire was reported from several parts of Belfast Monday night. Army vehicles were fired upon in the Antrim and Falls Road Catholic districts and soldiers fired rubber bullets to disperse a crowd in the Lower Falls Road.

One soldier was slightly injured when the crowd stoned the troops.

Hopes for a settlement of the dispute in Lenadoon rose Monday when a local Catholic leader said the IRA had agreed to suspend operations against the army in the area.

Whitelaw scheduled a meeting with Lenadoon army commanders in the morning and leaders of the residents' protest against the presence of British troops expressed confidence the situation could be resolved.

The Rev. Jack Fitzsimons, a Catholic priest who led almost 6,000 Catholic residents of the district in an evacuation Sunday to protest the presence of British troops at the trouble spot, said the IRA told him they had called off their operations in Lenadoon.

Earlier, in an attempt to prevent a complete evacuation of the neighborhood, Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw had offered to withdraw the soldiers if the IRA would leave as well. Troops moved in to flush out IRA gunmen who had besieged an army observation post in the district since the Provisional IRA cease-fire collapsed eight days ago.

Laird suggests McGovern made deal with Eagleton

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird suggested Monday that Democratic nominee George S. McGovern may have made a deal to insure production of the F15 fighter plane in order to get Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., to be his vice presidential running mate.

At a news conference laced with political shots at the Democratic presidential candidate, Laird also challenged the credibility of McGovern's claim that U.S. prisoners of war would be released almost automatically once U.S. forces withdrew from Indochina.

He said nothing the North Vietnamese have said to U.S. officials, other allied governments or to the Soviet Union and China bears out the South Dakota senator's contention.

The F15, dubbed the Eagle by the Air Force last week, is being produced by McDonnell-Douglas Aircraft Corp. in Eagleton's home town of St. Louis. The contract calls for the spending of $7.3 billion to produce 749 planes. Thus far the Air Force has spent $1.14 billion in developing the F15.

Laird said that under deep defense budget cuts previously proposed by McGovern prior to his winning the Democratic nomination, the F15 would be subject to immediate cancellation.

"I am led to believe, however," Laird told newsmen, "that perhaps the new vice presidential candidate—as part of his agreement to run—has been able to get a modification of the decision of the presidential candidate to cancel that particular contract."

In an added political jab, the defense secretary commented: "St. Louis has been known as Phantom Town, U.S.A., because the F4 Phantom jet was built there. It will be known as Eagle Town, U.S.A., in the future because of the Eagle fighter."

Of McGovern's prisoner of war approach, Laird said "I do not believe that promise is a legitimate promise or one that is credible. I would question the credibility of that statement based on all the information available."

Nixon wants trade pact with Russia by end of year

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon instructed Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson Monday to try and reach a comprehensive new trade agreement with the Soviet Union before the end of the year.

Peterson said he expected the agreement to include settlement of the Russian World War II Lend-Lease debt, establish credit arrangements for the expanded trade, deal with such controversial issues as patent laws and Russia's desire for "most-favored nation" status and include a maritime agreement by which some ports of each country would be opened to ships of the other.

"We all agree we have some tough bargaining ahead but we are hopeful the talks will be constructive," Peterson said.

His mission is to follow up on the three-year $750 million grain agreement he signed with his Soviet counterpart July 8 by broadening in other areas commerce between the world's two largest economies.

Peterson expressed the hope that trade—chiefly Soviet raw materials for American machines and tools—could be expanded to hundreds of millions of dollars yearly and perhaps into the billions at the end of the decade.

He met with the President for more than an hour in preparation for the first two weeks of the negotiations which begin Thursday in Moscow. He and a seven-member U.S. delegation were scheduled to leave for Moscow Monday night.

Peterson said he did not expect all the outstanding issues would be solved during the first negotiating period and another session would be held in Washington within a couple of months. Nixon and Soviet Party Chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev agreed during the Moscow summit in May to establish a bilateral trade commission which would meet alternately in the two capitals to work out expanded trade.

He said announcements would be made as agreements on the various outstanding issues are reached.

Scott taunts Demos

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress returned to a politically heated session Monday with a Republican leader taunting the Democrats to enact the platform they adopted in Miami Beach.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said the Republicans ought to give the Democratic-controlled Congress "the Truman treatment: now that you have adopted a platform, pass it."

He recalled that President Harry S. Truman summoned a special session of Congress in 1948 and demanded the Republicans write into law the platform they had approved in nominating Thomas E. Dewey as his opponent.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield conceded that the Democratic ticket of Sens. George S. McGovern and Thomas F. Eagleton faced an uphill fight.

"It's going to be a tough race," Mansfield said, adding that President Nixon would be hard to beat because of his "exceptionally good" foreign policy achievements in China and Russia and his withdrawal of troops from Vietnam.

Fischer defeats Russia's Spassky

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) —American challenger Bobby Fischer defeated Boris Spassky in the third game of their $250,000 world championship chess match Monday and cut the Russian champion's lead to one point.

Fischer's win, his first ever over Spassky, came when the Russian conceded the game on the 42nd move, his position hopeless.

Spassky won the first two games, with Fischer conceding the first after 56 moves and forfeiting the second by refusing to show up in a protest against closed-circuit television cameras in the hall.

The fourth game of the match is scheduled for 5 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT) today with Fischer playing the white pieces and making the first move.

The temperamental American was not even in the auditorium when the third game ended. Judge Lothar Schmid of West Germany opened a sealed brown envelope with a move Fischer had written down Sunday night when the game was adjourned, then moved Fischer's bishop to queen six to check Spassky's king.

The Russian took one quick look at the board, then stopped his game clock, signalling that he had given up.

Fischer rushed into the hall 10 minutes later and asked Schmid, "What happened? Has he resigned?" Schmid said Spassky had indeed given up, and Fischer rushed out again to the applause of what was left of the audience in the 3,000-seat hall.

Chess experts predicted Sunday Fischer would win the third game when he took command on the 38th and 39th moves and forced two queen checks in the fifth hour of play in a small backstage room in the same room as the auditorium.

Tax reform defeated

Laird suggests McGovern made deal with Eagleton

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird suggested Monday that Democratic nominee George S. McGovern may have made a deal to insure production of the F15 fighter plane in order to get Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., to be his vice presidential running mate.

At a news conference laced with political shots at the Democratic presidential candidate, Laird also challenged the credibility of McGovern's claim that U.S. prisoners of war would be released almost automatically once U.S. forces withdrew from Indochina.

He said nothing the North Vietnamese have said to U.S. officials, other allied governments or to the Soviet Union and China bears out the South Dakota senator's contention.

The F15, dubbed the Eagle by the Air Force last week, is being produced by McDonnell-Douglas Aircraft Corp. in Eagleton's home town of St. Louis. The contract calls for the spending of $7.3 billion to produce 749 planes. Thus far the Air Force has spent $1.14 billion in developing the F15.

Inmates protest at Attica prison

ATTICA, N.Y. (UPI)—Nearly three-quarters of the Attica Correctional Facility's 1,200 inmates refused to leave their cells Monday in the first major display of discontent at the prison since last fall's bloody rebellion that claimed 43 lives.

Officials closed the prison to newsmen and lawyers but said relatives and friends of inmates whose names appeared on an approved list were allowed to enter.

"I don't know how long this will last, but things are perfectly calm so far," said Supt. Ernest L. Montayne.

The action was apparently touched off when a nurse was taken off the work rolls but it apparently was also closely tied with failure to meet 28 demands set down by inmates during the rebellion.

Montayne said the protest "appears to stem from the fact a nurse (Mary Kingsley) was terminated."

He said two temporary nurses were hired but that "funds ran out and we were able to keep one and had to eliminate the other."

Groups representing both corrections officers and inmates expressed concern that the state had not improved conditions at the maximum security prison.

A spokesman for the Attica Defense Committee (ADC), a group of lawyers representing inmates suspected of leading last September's disturbance, said "You wouldn't get 900 people locking themselves into their cells over a single incident. It is the whole situation that is involved. This termination may have precipitated the incident, but it's only part of the reforms they need and want."

Two UMW officials indicted

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) —A Washington County grand jury indicted two United Mine Workers (UMW) officials Monday on three counts of murder each in connection with the Dec. 31, 1969 slayings of union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

But the panel dismissed charges that William Jack Prater, 53, of LaFollette, Tenn., and Albert Pass, 58, of Middleboro, Ky., conspired with five others to assassinate the Yablonskis at their home in nearby Clarksville.

Prater is a field representative and Pass secretary-treasurer of UMW District 19, comprising Tennessee and south-eastern Kentucky.

Each pleaded innocent at preliminary hearings. They were the first UMW officials arrested for the slaying of Yablonski following his unsuccessful 1969 campaign for the union presidency against incumbent W.A. "Tony" Boyle.

Three of the original five Yablonski suspects have pleaded guilty.

17 arrested in drug raid

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (UPI) —Members of the Allentown Police Vice Squad made a sweep through this Lehigh Valley area Monday in a move aimed at cracking down on drug traffic in the area.

Police said 17 persons were arrested and more apprehensions were anticipated.

Those arrested included both adults and juveniles. They were booked on charges of selling narcotics, including heroin, marijuana and LSD.

Police said the arrests came after an investigation was conducted by the Lehigh County Narcotics Information Center.

$1.5 billion in drugs seized

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A record $1.5 billion illicit drugs and narcotics were seized by the U. S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs during fiscal 1972, director John E. Ingersoll announced Monday.

A total $676,590,347 of illicit narcotics and dangerous drugs were removed from the illegal U. S. market alone by special agents, the bureau said.

Troop withdrawal prime condition

IRA makes offer for truce

BELFAST (UPI)—The Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army suspended operations in the Belfast neighborhood where the cease-fire collapsed eight days ago and said if the British troops would pull out, a new truce might be achieved, IRA sources said Monday night.

They said if Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw was willing to pull British troops out of the Lenadoon housing estate and return to the situation before the confrontation between soldiers and Roman Catholic residents July 9, the IRA would be willing to talk about a new cease-fire.

Unofficial contacts between the IRA and Whitelaw's office have been maintained since the cease-fire broke down, the sources said.

Sporadic gunfire was reported from several parts of Belfast Monday night. Army vehicles were fired upon in the Antrim and Falls Road Catholic districts and soldiers fired rubber bullets to disperse a crowd in the Lower Falls Road.

One soldier was slightly injured when the crowd stoned the troops.

Hopes for a settlement of the dispute in Lenadoon rose Monday when a local Catholic leader said the IRA had agreed to suspend operations against the army in the area.

Whitelaw scheduled a meeting with Lenadoon army commanders in the morning and leaders of the residents' protest against the presence of British troops expressed confidence the situation could be resolved.

The Rev. Jack Fitzsimons, a Catholic priest who led almost 6,000 Catholic residents of the district in an evacuation Sunday to protest the presence of British troops at the troublespot, said the IRA told him they had called off their operations in Lenadoon.

Earlier, in an attempt to prevent a complete evacuation of the neighborhood, Northern Ireland Secretary William Whitelaw had offered to withdraw the soldiers if the IRA would leave as well. Troops moved in to flush out IRA gunmen who had besieged an army observation post in the district since the Provisional IRA cease-fire collapsed eight days ago.

"We have responded to Mr. Whitelaw's call and we have asked the IRA not to use the area for attacks on the military," Fitzsimons told Catholics gathered in a nearby schoolhouse.

"The IRA have told us that in the interests of the suffering of the people they had already suspended operations in the Lenadoon area."

PUC ruling expected soon on water company gripes

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission is expected to render a decision in the near future on two complaints of State Belt consumers against two water companies.

Final arguments in the cases were presented to the PUC late last week.

In one complaint poor service has been charged against the Blue Mountain Consolidated Water Co., Nazareth, by three firms and two boroughs.

The major complainant, Collins & Aikman, Pen Argyl, has requested the PUC to order the water company to install a larger pipeline to the firm's plant in order to permit expansion of its operations.

According to Charles Zwally, an attorney for the water company, the change will not be made until improvements with higher priorities are finished.

Also registering complaints against the Blue Mountain company are Lincoln Textile Products Co., Nazareth; Speck Plastics Inc., Belfast; the Borough of Pen Argyl; and the Borough of Nazareth.

In the second case, a group of West Bangor consumers is charging that a rate increase two years ago by the Bangor Water Co. is unfair.

Kenneth R. Myers, an attorney for the water company, said the increase in rates was demanded because the company was forced to make substantial improvements after acquiring the West Bangor Water Co. from Joseph H. Beers in 1967.

However, Morris Mindlin, a Bethlehem attorney representing the consumers, said the improvements in the former system have been minimal.

Mindlin further suggested that the PUC consider that system and the rest of the Bangor Water Co. service area as separate systems with separate rate schedules.

The 1969 rate increase put the former West Bangor Water Co. consumers on the same rate schedule as other customers in the system.

Three-man law firm opens in Honesdale

HONESDALE — Atty. John F. Spall, 215 Penn. Ave., Hawley, has become associated with Wayne County District Attorney Robert J. Conway and Atty. Nicholas A. Barna in the general practice of law at 214 Ninth St., Honesdale.

A spokesman for the new three-man firm has announced it will specialize in real estate, negligence, corporation law, workmen's compensation cases, states, estate planning and the general practice of law.

The firm will now, however, handle any criminal defense cases because of the possibility of a conflict of interests with Conway as county district attorney, and Barna as assistant county district attorney.

Spall is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo F. Spall, 404 River St., Hawley.

He is a graduate of Wallenpaupack Area High School. Spall received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Scranton in 1968 and a juris doctor degree in 1971 from the Law School of Villanova University.

He passed the bar examination to practice law in Pennsylvania in July of last year.

Atty. John F. Spall

and the following October was certified by the State Board of Law Examiners.

He is a member of the American Bar Assn., the Pennsylvania Bar Assn., Wayne County Bar Assn., Hawley Recreation and Park Commission, Honesdale Jaycees, the Young Republicans Club of Wayne County, the Hawley Athletic Assn., and is an executive committee member of the Young Republicans.

Before joining Conway and Barna, he was associated with Atty. I. Reines Skier, of Hawley.

Commissioners appoint four assessors in Pike

MILFORD — The Commissioners of Pike County, Chairman George Coult and members Warner M. Depuy and James R. Duffy, Jr., appointed four assistant assessors Monday.

Named were Walter Prigte and Vernon Baum, Shohola; Raymond Orben, Milford; and William Basham, Matamoras. The men will receive an annual salary of $8,000 for a 40-hour work week and a mileage allowance of 10 cents per mile.

The officials said that after receiving training in property assessment procedures, the four men will be working with Chief Assessor Thomas Coleman on re-assessment of land and property in the county. John Quinn, Dingman Township, was also hired as an assistant assessor in Pike County several weeks ago.

During their meeting, the Commissioners accepted with regret the resignation of George Goehring as an assessor in Dingman Township.

The county officials announced that the Mott Street bridge between Milford Borough and Dingman Township would remain open with a load limit of three tons pending a further report from County Engineer Fred Schoenagle.

Detectives seminar scheduled

WHITE HAVEN — The County Detectives Association of Pennsylvania will hold its annual conference at Le Chateau, White Haven, from July 20-23.

During the meetings, District Attorney Milton O. Moss of Montgomery County, president of the District Attorney's Assn., will be honored and presented with the CDAP Distinguished Community Service Award for his years of supporting police legislation in Pennsylvania.

A panel will be held on new applications on the National Crime Information Center concerning criminal histories. On the panel will be Special Agent Donald R. Roderick, F.B.I., Washington, D.C.; Police Inspector James C. Herron, Philadelphia Police Department Computer and Research Division; and nationally known prosecutor Richard A. Sprague, first assistant District Attorney of Philadelphia, who recently prosecuted all defendants in the Yablonski murders.

Horse scores shut-out

SPARTA, N.J. — Georgie Girl, a four-year-old bay mare stabled at Bethany Colony, scored an unusual shut-out victory in the limit Jumper Championship held recently at the Homestead Stables Horse Show, Sparta, N.J.

The horse, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Crankshaw of Bethany Colony, has been in training for only three months. Crankshaw noted it is unusual for a horse to take all three first prizes in any particular division.

The mare was sired by a standard bred in Honesdale and was trained by James Dalling of Shalom Acres, Lake Ariel, and ridden by Marc Abramovitz.

Fire company open house draws 1,000 in Mt. Bethel

MOUNT BETHEL — An estimated crowd of 1,000 people participated in Sunday's open house at the Mount Bethel Volunteer Fire Co.

Those in attendance inspected the company's five pieces of equipment, listened to speeches from dignitaries and participated in a "wet-down" for the 1971 International brush truck which was acquired by the fire company last fall.

The company's other pieces of equipment include a 1937 Chevrolet with 500-gallon tank, a 1954 Ford with a 1,000-gallon tank, a 1967 Hahn with 1,000-gallon tank and a 1968 Ford Utility panel truck.

State Rep. Philip Ruggiero, the main guest speaker, praised the fire company for its work in the Upper Mount Bethel area since its formation 49 years ago.

Original officers of the company were Harold O. Coss, president; Frederick Hunt, vice president; Robert Farleigh, secretary; and John Felker, treasurer.

Charter members included Sherman O. Coss, Charles E. Felker, William Koutz, Matthew Hazen, Abraham S. Hunt, Floyd Correll, Joseph R. Hagerman, Charles Eyer, George Percival and Edward Oyer. Oyer is the only surviving charter member.

Since its founding, the company has occupied three buildings, with the present location on Rte. 611 in Mount Bethel being the third.

Renovations to the building began in 1964 and are scheduled to be completed this year. Improvements to the building include the installation of air conditioning and the construction of a meeting room in a portion of the building which is used for storing equipment. In other ceremonies during the open house, Mrs. Dorothy Phillips presented the company with a memorial plaque listing deceased members and charter members.

Mrs. Phillips presented the plaque in memory of her late husband, Charles "Happy" Phillips. The plaque has been hung at the entrance of the fire hall.

Conrad Idukas, representing U.S. Rep. Fred B. Rooney, D-Bethlehem, presented a flag which was flown over the Capitol to the company.

Commemorative glasses noting the company's 49 years of service were presented.

Board agrees to seek new trash collector

MOUNT BETHEL — Upper Mount Bethel Township Supervisors have agreed to seek the services of another trash collector even though the present contract with High Point Sanitation, of New Jersey, does not expire until August of next year.

The supervisors have been receiving complaints of poor service from the township customers for the past several months.

The most recent board meeting again saw residents lodge complaints about the company in regard to garbage not being picked up and garbage being left along the side of the road for animals to get into.

Supervisors have stated on several occasions that all attempts to resolve the problems have been unsuccessful.

Township officials have also stated the firm has violated its contract in several instances by picking up trash on Sundays after 8 p.m., which is the specified time limit.

In spite of the fact that the present contract with the trash collectors does not contain a penalty clause, the township solicitor has advised the board it can retain another collector, including one on a month-to-month basis on a retainers fee, and deduct the cost from the payment to High Point Sanitation.

Supervisor Chairman Victor Melnick had requested the owner of the firm and his drivers to appear at a meeting with the supervisors last week to discuss the matter.

However, they did not appear for the meeting. When contacted, they said they were working on repairs to their vehicles and could not make the meeting.

McGovern: Such a long name!

We have been writing headlines on stories about Sen. George S. McGovern ever since he and his army of supporters descended upon Miami Beach last week, and frankly, we don't like it one bit.

Not that we have anything against the candidate, understand. It's just that name of his. "McGovern." It is a long name (by editor's measure, nine counts) and difficult to fit in the larger-type-size headlines.

The late President Eisenhower has an even longer name, but he happily had a beautiful nickname (from the editor's point of view): Ike. The count for "Ike" is only two and a half. A beautiful name to write into headlines.

In fact, President Nixon's name is the worst newspapermen have had to deal with in quite some time — since 1932, as a fact (it counts five).

After Herbert Hoover came Franklin Delano Roosevelt, and very conveniently his name was shortened to FDR. Next came Harry S. Truman (HST), "Ike," John F. Kennedy (JFK) and Lyndon B. Johnson (LBJ).

But there just doesn't seem to be a nickname to fit George McGovern. "Mac" doesn't match the man. It is too informal for his usually serious outlook. "George" might fit Mr. Wallace, but not Mr. McGovern. "GSM" is unintelligible and McG. just doesn't have that ringing sound one associates with a successful nickname.

That may prove to be a drawback in this campaign. America is a nation of nickname-lovers. We "liked Ike" and spoke fondly (with a delicious sense of intimacy) of FDR, HST, JFK and LBJ. The same failing may have had something to do with the late Adlai Stevenson's conspicuous lack of success in the presidential hustings.

And then McGovern compounded the matter by taking on Sen. Thomas Eagleton as his running mate. A McGovern-Eagleton slate just doesn't make it in headlines. Too much bother. The temptation is great, when deciding what size type to order for a headline, to order the smaller sizes, because those names will fit better.

Thus, by default, the Nixon-Agnew ticket (if Spiro is still around) may get the bigger headlines and therefore the most attention. Try it; say McGovern is elected and orders the troops out of Vietnam. How would you say that in a headline of, say, 24 counts? The best we could do in a short time was "McGovern recalls troops" — a bit short, but it will do.

It might seem silly, but we are almost tempted not to vote for the man just so we won't have to write headlines with that all-but unmanageable name.

We shudder to think of the travail visited upon those editors who had to wrestle with "Cleveland" in those far-off days!

License newsmen?

A state legislator has suggested that newspaper, radio and television newsmen should be licensed, just as barbers, electricians, doctors and lawyers are required to be licensed.

It is doubtful that on a national basis the idea will get much support. But, the very suggestion carries with it a potential for possible trouble in the future.

Licensing of newsmen was suggested on the theory that since standards of knowledge and performance are set for other professions, why not do the same by statute for newsmen?

Under such regulations, if they became law, a newsmen would be required to take a test to meet the requirements of the law administered by the authorities.

Owners of newspapers, magazines and radio and television stations would be subject to licensing if they supervised the content of the news that their outlets offered.

There is no doubt that licensing and state control of those who write the news and present it in the nation's news media would cut freedom of expression to an unbelievable degree.

Licensing means control and if and when the state would control newsmen, the news would not be worth reading, for the press would merely be the sounding board of the state.

McGovern labor record

MIAMI BEACH — If and when AFL-CIO president George Meany and Sen. McGovern meet to talk things over, it will be at best a very temporary armed truce on both sides.

Meany makes no bones of his dislike and distrust of McGovern, scornfully refers to him as "the jerk."

McGovern has a long record of legislative hostility to organized labor, including what they irately charge as "welching" and "double-crossing" on commitments allegedly made to them.

Whether Meany and McGovern do get together is highly doubtful.

Lieutenants of both are working at it, but with no luck so far.

Up to now, neither Meany nor McGovern has made a serious effort to meet.

Meany has ignored McGovern, except to make disparaging remarks about the South Dakota radical. It's very evident Meany has no intention of extending an invitation; if McGovern asks for one, he'll get it. That's as far as Meany will go.

McGovern has talked about seeking a session with Meany, but has done nothing about it. Several weeks before the Democratic convention, McGovern, in response to a question in a televised interview about labor's opposition to him, said he planned to "phone Mr. Meany next week and drop around to see him."

He has yet to do so.

Although McGovern had time to spend several days resting and relaxing at his $75,000 eleven-acre "Royal Oak" estate on Maryland's Eastern shore, and met with visitors and others at his campaign headquarters, he made no move to get in touch with Meany.

When an assistant of the veteran AFL-CIO chief asked about that, he replied, "I haven't heard from the jerk. He's not listed on my appointment calendar. That statement about his coming to see me was just another of his publicity stunts."

Addendum: McGovern bought his Eastern Shore place in 1965. There are a swimming pool and a tennis court. The house, located on a cove off of Broad Creek, is roomy with a sun porch that extends the full length of the structure. There is a white picket fence entwined with honeysuckle and other flowers. Records show there is a $34,000 mortgage on the property.

McGovern's custom-built Japanese-style Washington home, which he bought from Chief Judge David Bazelon of the U.S. Circuit Court of the District of Columbia, for $160,000, has 10 rooms and four baths — and a $47,000 mortgage.

The record

Strikingly indicative of Labor's deep-seated hostility toward McGovern is a 25-page pamphlet widely circulated at the Convention citing in detail his anti-union record.

Insiders attributed this blistering document largely to COPE — the political arm of the AFL-CIO.

Officials of this powerful and well-heeled organization were present in force at the convention. They were in the forefront of the anti-McGovern lobbying, pressuring, maneuvering and manipulating. They were vigorously in every battle off and on the convention floor opposing the South Dakota radical.

In addition to being disseminated at the convention, the scathing pamphlet has also been sent to thousands of union leaders and officials throughout the country.

It is obviously destined to play an important role in the fall election.

A highlight of this highly significant brochure is a list of what are tagged as McGovern's anti-labor legislative votes. Foremost among them are:

1959 — McGovern voted for the Landrum-Griffin bill violently opposed by the AFL-CIO. The measure as passed requires unions to file financial statements, deals with the terms of office of union officials, and imposes restraints on secondary boycotts. McGovern was the only Midwestern Democrat to vote for the legislation.

1960 — McGovern voted against raising the minimum wage to $1.15 and extending coverage to 1.4 million retail workers. He was one of only five non-Southern Democrats to oppose the measure.

1965 — McGovern voted against a motion, by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, to impose cloture to cut off a filibuster to block Senate action on a House-passed bill repealing Section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act legalizing state "right to work" laws. Elimination of this provision has been a long-sought union goal, and McGovern's vote against the laborites has never been forgotten or forgiven.

Adding to their ire is that he "welched" on them. The unionites claim he promised to support cloture but voted against it.

Also in 1965, McGovern voted against legislation, vehemently advocated by the Seafarers and other unions, requiring that 50 per cent of wheat shipped to Russia or any Communist-ruled country had to be transported in American ships. When the laborites asked for a statement on his position of this intensely controversial measure, he infuriated them by replying with a declaration worded exactly like a memorandum of leading opponent of the bill.

1966 — McGovern was one of only five Northern Democrats who voted for amendments to limit minimum wage coverage. Also that year, he was one of the only six Northern Democrats to vote for an amendment to recommit a Labor Department and HEW appropriation bill for drastic trimming. This move was defeated 40 to 24.

1968 — McGovern was one of a handful of Northern Democrats who voted to table a proposal providing $52.1 million for summer jobs. The tabling motion was defeated 44 to 32 — and McGovern's opposition was bitterly denounced by laborites.

Summarizes the pamphlet: "In attitude and deed, Sen. McGovern has repeatedly demonstrated throughout his Congressional career that he is inherently hostile to the legitimate interests and welfare of the working man and woman. This record is indisputable during his service in the House and Senate."

Health questions

Are salt tablets effective in keeping cool in very hot weather?

Dear Miss R.:

Salt itself does not keep the body cool. Yet it does serve an important function during periods of great physical exertion.

Salt is sodium chloride, of NaCl. The Na, or sodium, has a special affinity for retaining water in the body. The water balance is very important to normal healthy functioning of the body.

Both salt and fluid are rapidly lost in perspiration when exercising or working in hot weather. Both should be replenished to maintain that water balance.

Some time ago, the United States Army Medical Department suggested that the best way to keep cool and comfortable in desert and jungle areas was a shower or bath in tepid or lukewarm water.

It was found that the water helped the body's own cooling system to work better in extreme climates.

Additional comfort can be gained by increasing moderately the fluid intake, avoiding alcoholic beverages.

A light diet is advantageous. Most important is not to overextend one's physical capacity during periods of excessive heat.

Salt tablets, taken in moderation, when prescribed by a doctor, can be helpful.

Letters to the Editor

Concert situation was unreal

Editor, The Record:

I am sending this letter to you hoping you will help us to get it into print. We are a small township in Monroe County and cannot stand alone against what has taken place this past weekend and therefore, we are asking each and every resident in our county to stand behind us and give us the support we will need.

The residents of Tunkhannock Township would like to know what is wrong with the Monroe County government officials that they would let something like the rock concert take place in Monroe County. What took place in this township this past weekend is so uncomprehensible that the whole situation was unreal. Medical and fire protection was so far beyond our reach a person would think we lived in the dark ages. There was no personal nor property protection available to the residents of the Long Pond and Fern Ridge areas. When the Pennsylvania State Police were phoned, the answer received was, "I'm sorry, there is nothing we can do."

The Schaefer 500 race was cancelled due to inadequate sewage facilities, lack of security and fire protection supposedly because of a very recent flood disaster which hit within 30 miles of the Pocono International Raceway. A very strong request to cancel this race came from Governor Shapp because he did not want an over-abundance of people in the disaster area, with which the raceway complied. Less than one week later a rock concert was permitted to take place bringing into the area four to five times as many people as the Schaefer 500 race would have and which the Pocono International Raceway was completely unprepared to handle as they do not have adequate facilities to handle this many people.

Some of us who had jobs to go to could not get our cars out of the garage. If we were lucky we could at least get the car out of the garage and into the driveway but no further. People parked cars wherever they could — front yards, driveways, fields, in the middle of state and township roads — and just left them. They drove through lawns and fields with crops already planted in them to try and get as close to the raceway as possible. Lawns were used for public toilet facilities where no privacy existed, camp sites, and garbage dumps. The cemetery was used as a campsite and parking lot.

Our feathered friends even suffered as bird baths were used for public bathing facilities. For two full nights and days all this took place and the residents of this township had to stand by and were actually helpless to protect their property. Two public buildings, both of which are maintained strictly by volunteer workers, The Tunkhannock Township Volunteer Fire Company and The Long Pond Community Center, were broken into, ransacked, property and equipment stolen and damaged — estimate of damage unknown at this time.

The State Police were phoned by several residents and were once again told, "I'm sorry there is nothing we can do. The cars are jammed up on the roads so bad that we can not get into the area." When asked if they could possibly send in help by helicopter, they said there was not one available to them. However, one and one-half hours later one was reported to have been seen over the area.

The people who purchased tickets cannot be blamed for all of this. A great deal of the blame lies with the raceway officials and our own local government officials for knowing what could happen and just standing by like angels with golden halos not taking the necessary precautionary measures. Naturally the raceway would not do anything to stop an event like this from taking place. And for our local government officials, they should have had enough foresight to see what was about to take place. Possibly a few golden halos will be slightly tarnished.

Is this the kind of protection that the citizens of Monroe County are paying taxes for? Is this the reason we elect local government officials — to just stand by and let strangers come in and rampage through the communities of our county?

Master key inconsequential

Editor, The Record:

In your editorial of June 24, you attempt to justify the need for Tock's Island Dam on the grounds that it is the "master key" in a "jigsaw puzzle" network of smaller dams along tributaries in the area which would spare the Delaware from the flood devastation it experienced in 1955, and so many other sections of the northeast suffered from only last week.

It is encouraging that The Record recognizes the importance of a network of small dams on tributaries as a means of flood control, an idea that conservationists have advocated for some time as an alternative to Tock's Dam. However, your inclusion of Tock's Dam within the small dam network fails to explain just how Tock's Dam is to function as its "master key". As you have repeatedly pointed out — and do so again on page 11 of your June 27 issue re: Allentown — the tributaries were the major cause of flood damage and loss of life in the 1955 flood.

Therefore, why would not a network of tributary dams be sufficient to control flooding? "Master key" Tock's Dam seems to me to be superfluous, an extra piece in the "jigsaw puzzle".

I should think the conclusion to be drawn from the recent floods is quite the opposite from the one you reach: Tock's Dam, far from being a "master key", is very much small potatoes, and when its undesirability on so many other counts is considered, surely the outlandish monies to be expended on it might better be used in behalf of the tributary dams.

Conventions make cynics

This typewriter is about 45 minutes by car from the Democratic National Convention but I will not attend. This applies to the Republican National Convention, too. The fault is mine. I have attended too many of them and I can't imagine anything more dolorous than a third succeeding speech for the nomination of Wilbur Mills.

Nor the reading of a party platform which is never strong enough for a nominee to stand on and not weak enough for him to fall to his death. In time, the reporter becomes more cynical than the delegates, and that is cynical indeed. The sweaty delegates who grab a microphone hollering hoarsely, "Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman. A point of order," seldom have a point of order.

They coin clunky clichés like: "From the rockbound coast of Maine to the sunny shores of California . . ." Increasingly, the political pundits spend time explaining what they think is going to happen because there is so little inspiration in what is happening.

24 votes for whom?

My father led me by the hand to Madison Square Garden in 1924 to watch the first one. Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo forced the Democrats to 102 ballots in a dead heat. At each roll call, the chairman of the Alabama delegation opened with: "The sovereign state of Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood."

He was a Senator. The Wyoming delegation thought he was a typewriter. On the 103rd ballot, the Democrats, after much cogitation, came up with a compromise nominee who couldn't possibly win: John W. Davis of Wall St. The Republican, Calvin Coolidge, knocked him over, 15,725,000 votes to 8,386,000. The Midwest Progressive party nominee, Robert La Follette, drew 4,822,000.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Chestnut

A stale joke often is referred to as a "chestnut." The term originated in the English play "The Broken Sword," which was first produced in 1816.

One of the chief characters is a Captain Xavier, who frequently retells his jokes — often with variations.

During one scene the captain retells a joke that involves a tree — a cork tree, he says — when a listener interrupts: "You mean a chestnut tree, captain."

"The captain says, 'I know better than you. It was a cork tree.'"

"The listener replies, 'I have heard you tell the joke twenty-seven times, and I am sure it was a chestnut.'"

One got job

The delegates whooped and hollered. Then they nominated Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of a heart attack. In the 1960 election, John Kennedy drew 34,227,000; Richard Nixon got 34,108,000. Tight? One became President of the United States; the other became unemployed.

Something is wrong with the system, or something is wrong with me. I can appreciate naked greed; I just can't tolerate it when it is wrapped in patriotism and the American flag. Nor can I feel anyway but sick to know that state delegations must now have a representative number of women, blacks and youth. Obviously, this gives an unfair advantage to minorities.

I would prefer that all who wish to be delegates to a national convention stand for election — not as women, or men, or blacks or whites — but as persons qualified to scheme, to plot, and to lie in favor of the spoils system.

Concert situation was unreal

Editor, The Record:

I am sending this letter to you hoping you will help us to get it into print. We are a small township in Monroe County and cannot stand alone against what has taken place this past weekend and therefore, we are asking each and every resident in our county to stand behind us and give us the support we will need.

The residents of Tunkhannock Township would like to know what is wrong with the Monroe County government officials that they would let something like the rock concert take place in Monroe County. What took place in this township this past weekend is so uncomprehensible that the whole situation was unreal. Medical and fire protection was so far beyond our reach a person would think we lived in the dark ages. There was no personal nor property protection available to the residents of the Long Pond and Fern Ridge areas. When the Pennsylvania State Police were phoned, the answer received was, "I'm sorry, there is nothing we can do."

The Schaefer 500 race was cancelled due to inadequate sewage facilities, lack of security and fire protection supposedly because of a very recent flood disaster which hit within 30 miles of the Pocono International Raceway. A very strong request to cancel this race came from Governor Shapp because he did not want an over-abundance of people in the disaster area, with which the raceway complied. Less than one week later a rock concert was permitted to take place bringing into the area four to five times as many people as the Schaefer 500 race would have and which the Pocono International Raceway was completely unprepared to handle as they do not have adequate facilities to handle this many people.

Some of us who had jobs to go to could not get our cars out of the garage. If we were lucky we could at least get the car out of the garage and into the driveway but no further. People parked cars wherever they could — front yards, driveways, fields, in the middle of state and township roads — and just left them. They drove through lawns and fields with crops already planted in them to try and get as close to the raceway as possible. Lawns were used for public toilet facilities where no privacy existed, camp sites, and garbage dumps. The cemetery was used as a campsite and parking lot.

Our feathered friends even suffered as bird baths were used for public bathing facilities. For two full nights and days all this took place and the residents of this township had to stand by and were actually helpless to protect their property. Two public buildings, both of which are maintained strictly by volunteer workers, The Tunkhannock Township Volunteer Fire Company and The Long Pond Community Center, were broken into, ransacked, property and equipment stolen and damaged — estimate of damage unknown at this time.

The State Police were phoned by several residents and were once again told, "I'm sorry there is nothing we can do. The cars are jammed up on the roads so bad that we can't get into the area." When asked if they could possibly send in help by helicopter, they said there was not one available to them. However, one and one-half hours later one was reported to have been seen over the area.

The people who purchased tickets cannot be blamed for all of this. A great deal of the blame lies with the raceway officials and our own local government officials for knowing what could happen and just standing by like angels with golden halos not taking the necessary precautionary measures. Naturally the raceway would not do anything to stop an event like this from taking place. And for our local government officials, they should have had enough foresight to see what was about to take place. Possibly a few golden halos will be slightly tarnished.

Is this the kind of protection that the citizens of Monroe County are paying taxes for? Is this the reason we elect local government officials — to just stand by and let strangers come in and rampage through the communities of our county?

Master key inconsequential

Editor, The Record:

In your editorial of June 24, you attempt to justify the need for Tock's Island Dam on the grounds that it is the "master key" in a "jigsaw puzzle" network of smaller dams along tributaries in the area which would spare the Delaware from the flood devastation it experienced in 1955, and so many other sections of the northeast suffered from only last week.

It is encouraging that The Record recognizes the importance of a network of small dams on tributaries as a means of flood control, an idea that conservationists have advocated for some time as an alternative to Tock's Dam. However, your inclusion of Tock's Dam within the small dam network fails to explain just how Tock's Dam is to function as its "master key". As you have repeatedly pointed out — and do so again on page 11 of your June 27 issue re: Allentown — the tributaries were the major cause of flood damage and loss of life in the 1955 flood.

Therefore, why would not a network of tributary dams be sufficient to control flooding? "Master key" Tock's Dam seems to me to be superfluous, an extra piece in the "jigsaw puzzle".

I should think the conclusion to be drawn from the recent floods is quite the opposite from the one you reach: Tock's Dam, far from being a "master key", is very much small potatoes, and when its undesirability on so many other counts is considered, surely the outlandish monies to be expended on it might better be used in behalf of the tributary dams.

Conventions make cynics

This typewriter is about 45 minutes by oxcart from the Democratic National Convention but I will not attend. This applies to the Republican National Convention, too. The fault is mine. I have attended too many of them and I can't imagine anything more dolorous than a third seconding speech for the nomination of Wilbur Mills.

Nor the reading of a party platform which is never strong enough for a nominee to stand on and not weak enough for him to fall to his death. In time, the reporter becomes more cynical than the delegates, and that is cynical indeed. The sweaty delegates who grab a microphone hollering hoarsely, "Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman. A point of order," seldom have a point of order.

They coin clunky clichés like: "From the rockbound coast of Maine to the sunny shores of California . . ." Increasingly, the political pundits spend time explaining what they think is going to happen because there is so little inspiration in what is happening.

24 votes for whom?

My father led me by the hand to Madison Square Garden in 1924 to watch the first one. Alfred E. Smith and William G. McAdoo forced the Democrats to 102 ballots in a dead heat. At each roll call, the chairman of the Alabama delegation opened with: "The sovereign state of Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood."

He was a Senator. The Wyoming delegation thought he was a typewriter. On the 103rd ballot, the Democrats, after much cogitation, came up with a compromise nominee who couldn't possibly win: John W. Davis of Wall St. The Republican, Calvin Coolidge, knocked him over, 15,725,000 votes to 8,386,000. The Midwest Progressive party nominee, Robert La Follette, drew 4,822,000.

Stories Behind Words

By William Penfield

Chestnut

A stale joke often is referred to as a "chestnut." The term originated in the English play "The Broken Sword," which was first produced in 1816.

One of the chief characters is a Captain Xavier, who frequently retells his jokes — often with variations.

During one scene the captain retells a joke that involves a tree — a cork tree, he says — when a listener interrupts: "You mean a chestnut tree, captain."

The captain says, "I know better than you. It was a cork tree."

The listener replies, "I have heard you tell the joke twenty-seven times, and I am sure it was a chestnut."

Most of the experts, who believe that a party which purges itself in public will lose in November, should restudy the Democratic Convention of 1932 in Chicago. Al Smith fought for one more try at the Presidency. His protégé, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, broke the party wide open in a battle to kill his mentor.

Matters got so out of hand that Smith's floor manager, Frank Hague of Jersey City, stooped to a new low when he stated: "If you cannot nominate Smith, for God's sake don't nominate a cripple." The cripple won, fought a great Depression and a great war. He was elected to four terms and Bob Hope said: "I always voted for Roosevelt. So did my father."

When Roosevelt ran for a fourth term against Thomas E. Dewey, FDR resorted to an unfair subterfuge. The nation was in the final year of a great war, and he ran, not as President, but as "Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces." Dewey and his manager, Herbert Brownell, found the title so hard to beat that they wore themselves out referring to FDR and his Cabinet as "Those tired old men in Washington."

Nothing is as it seems. The Republican party blamed their own man, Herbert Hoover, for the Great Depression. Richard E. Berlin, his friend, arranged for me to meet Hoover when he was 85. The Iowa engineer was no more responsible for that Depression than a Chinese kid who sneezes is responsible for Asian flu sweeping the world.

The GOP refused to invite Hoover to conventions or party councils between 1932 and 1956. Then, as I sat in the Cow Palace in California, I heard the strains of "Hail to the Chief" and out of a cadre of Secret Service men, the plump smile of Hoover emerged — forgiven at last.

One got job

The delegates whooped and hollered. Then they nominated Dwight D. Eisenhower, victim of a heart attack. In the 1960 election, John Kennedy drew 34,227,000; Richard Nixon got 34,108,000. Tight? One became President of the United States; the other became unemployed.

Something is wrong with the system, or something is wrong with me. I can appreciate naked greed; I just can't tolerate it when it is wrapped in patriotism and the American flag. Nor can I feel anyway but sick to know that state delegations must now have a representative number of women, blacks and youth. Obviously, this gives an unfair advantage to minorities.

I would prefer that all who wish to be delegates to a national convention stand for election — not as women, or men, or blacks or whites — but as persons qualified to scheme, to plot, and to lie in favor of the spoils system.

Parents should finance education

Laity against parochial school aid

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The National Association of the Laity (NAL), a liberal faction within the Roman Catholic Church, said Monday parochial schools do not deserve massive state funding.

Four association officers, speaking at a news conference, called on Catholic parents to finance their own children's education.

"The Catholic community simply is not willing to finance Catholic schools," NAL Executive Director Joseph O'Donoghue said. "It is not a matter of rising costs."

O'Donoghue, of New York City, said average family contributions consistently have been falling, even though Catholics know that most of the money is used to support parochial schools.

He said additional state funding would encourage even smaller contributions, thus leaving the schools in the same poor financial condition.

"If you give Catholics $2 million," he said,

"Catholics will give $2 million less on Sunday morning. This is a bottomless bucket into which the state is pouring unending sums of money."

The NAL proposed enactment by the church of a head tax on all adult Catholics to support the schools.

"Each parent has the right to choose where he shall send his children to school," Rosemary Crist, NAL information director said, "but in the United States, he does not have a right to expect public funding when it is a sectarian school."

Mrs. Crist, of Pittsburgh said the head tax would create a pool "to sustain those parochial schools which prove beneficial."

Mrs. Crist said the General Assembly had been "intimidated" by pressure from the church's lobbying organization, the Pennsylvania Catholic Conference, into approving massive funding bills for nonpublic schools.

A $31 million appropriation for textbooks and services was signed into law last week. An additional $15 million for transportation was approved by the House but is under study in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Mrs. Crist said the money should be given to public schools to help them absorb the increasing numbers of Catholic children who are transferring from the parochial schools.

According to NAL statistics, 438,026 children were enrolled in parochial schools in 1972, a decrease of 24 per cent below 1971. They represented only 46 per cent of all Catholic children.

"The legislators have the impression that parochial school aid is favored by the majority of Catholic voters," Mrs. Crist said. "But 54 per cent of Catholic children are in the public schools statewide, and in some areas it's up to 75 per cent. State aid is not doing anything for them. I don't think the legislators realize that."

Kennedy 'kidnapers' indicted

ATHENS (UPI) — Eight Greeks arrested for allegedly planning to kidnap the son of late U.S. President John F. Kennedy and other prominent persons have been indicted for conspiracy and will be brought to trial soon, a government spokesman said Monday.

The eight, including a professor of literature, a baker and six construction workers, were arrested a month ago and are being held in a prison in Piraeus, the spokesman said. Announcement of the arrests was made during the weekend.

According to the 22-page indictment, the spokesman said, the eight planned a series of robberies and abductions of government officials, diplomats and prominent persons for cash ransoms.

The spokesman gave no details on whether any of the plots actually was carried out by the group, which he said apparently was trying to organize itself along the lines of the underground Turkish People's Liberation Army.

Warplanes bomb inside city

Paratroopers fight house to house

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese paratroopers fought from house to house in the ruins of Quang Tri city Monday, moving toward a stone walled citadel where Communists troops are believed dug in, field reports said.

UPI correspondent Donald A. Davis reported from inside the city, South Vietnam's northernmost provincial capital, that the 1,000 paratroopers did not plan to rush the 19th century citadel.

"They (the Communists) are going to take a lot more softening up," one officer told Davis.

The paratroopers trying to recapture Quang Tri city from the North Vietnamese were supported by "constant" artillery barrages, Davis said. But no U.S. warplanes have bombed inside the city since late last week for fear of hitting civilians.

Outside Quang Tri, there was no such restriction, and the U.S. command said 20 waves of B52 bombers, 190 jet fighters and 10 U.S. Navy ships bombarded the Quang Tri area with the heaviest raids in almost three weeks.

Many of the warplanes, including seven formations of B52 bombers, hit as far away from Quang Tri city as 25 miles to the west. Military sources said those air raids were aimed at cutting off North Vietnamese reinforcements moving toward the province capital.

Davis, the first correspondent to enter Quang Tri city proper since the Communists captured it May 1, said the scene there was "unbelievable."

"Every building in Quang Tri has suffered damage, if it has not been totally destroyed," he said. "You have to shout to make yourself heard over the blast of (artillery)."

No official casualty report from the fighting inside Quang Tri was available. Davis saw 15 dead paratroopers being carried out of the city on a wooden cart.

A high-ranking field officer said that quick-moving Communists had cut off 80 airborne troops inside the city late

Sunday, and commanders had "pretty well written off" the men as casualties.

Official spokesmen refused to talk about the fighting inside Quang Tri city because they did not want to divulge South Vietnamese positions.

Outside the city, fighting Sunday left 194 Communists and 29 government troops killed and another 84 South Vietnamese marines wounded, the command said.

North Vietnamese gunners hit a marine position two miles east of Quang Tri with 50 artillery rounds Monday, causing "light" casualties, spokesmen said.

How you can use electricity more wisely.

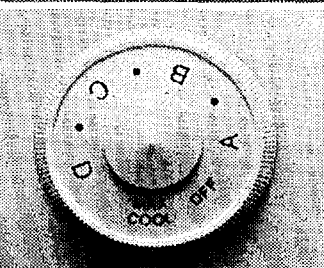

Electric blanket—when your alarm rings in the morning, turn off the blanket first, then the clock.

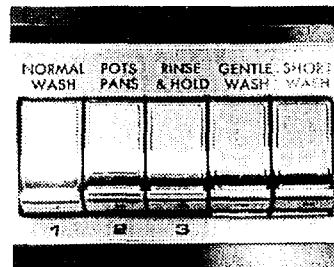

Freezer—make sure your freezer is not running colder than recommended by the manufacturer. Replace worn-out or broken door gaskets to prevent warm air from leaking in.

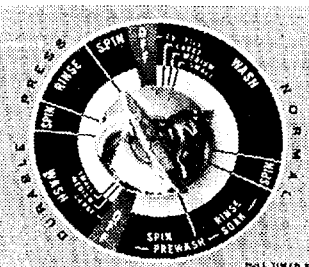

Iron—getting an iron hot enough to take out wrinkles takes electricity. So once it's hot, do a whole batch rather than one or two items.

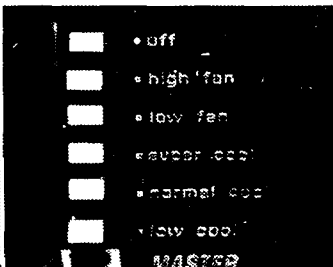

Refrigerator—the cold stays in when the door is closed. Keeping your refrigerator defrosted will keep it performing efficiently.

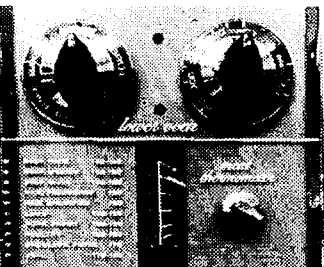

Dishwasher—for machines that don't have partial load settings, rinse and hold your dishes until there is a full load.

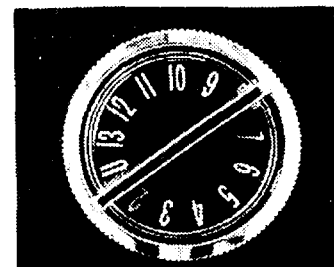

Clothes washer—use the full cycle setting only for full loads. Colored and slightly soiled clothes can be cleaned in warm rather than hot water.

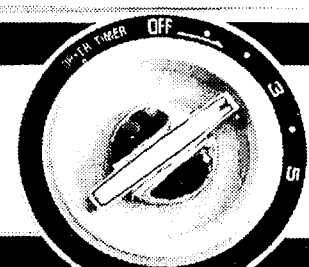

Air conditioner—closing draperies, blinds or curtains to keep out direct sunlight can cut heat coming into your house by 50 percent, substantially reducing your air conditioner's workload.

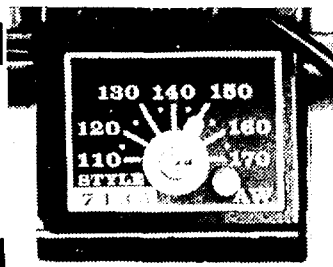

Electric oven—make the best use of a warmed-up oven. Bake several dishes together which require slightly different heat settings, and remove as each is done.

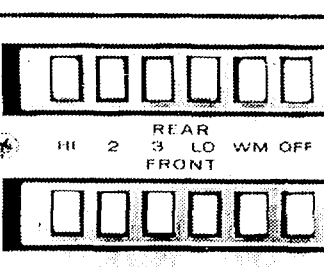

Television—if nobody's watching, it should be turned off.

Clothes dryer—you can save drying time by taking clothes out while they are slightly damp and just right for ironing.

Water heater—repair leaky hot water faucets. A leak of one drip per second for one year will pour 2500 gallons of hot water down the drain. And remember, showers take less hot water than baths.

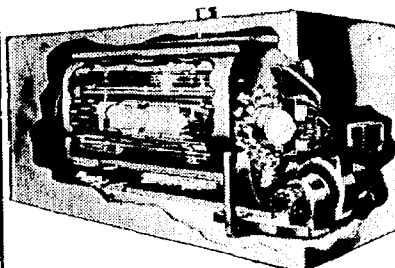

Electric range top—lower heat settings can be used if you cook in covered pots and pans.

West End physician weds

YORK — Miss Virginia Ann Reilly and Dr. William James Martucci were married on Saturday, July 8, at 2 p.m. at St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Reilly, 1263 West Princess St., York.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Martucci of Brothheadville, Monroe County.

Rev. Edmond Campion, assistant pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was provided by the folk choir of the church.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of silk organza with Venice lace and seed pearls trimming the mandarin collar, sheer yoke, lantern sleeves and empire bodice. Matching appliques trimmed the A-line skirt which ended in a ruffled hemline and included a chapel length train. A cap of organza blossoms held her veil of English illusion. She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses and blue delphinium.

Mrs. Suzanne Brown of McLean, Va., was her sister's matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marianne Reilly, sister of the bride, Suzanne Surachak and Peggy Mayer.

Capt. Alan Young of Selma, Ala., was best man. Ushers were Dr. James McBride, Allentown; Patrick Reilly, York, brother of the bride; John Martucci, East Stroudsburg, brother of the bridegroom; and Dr. Allen Bullinen, Silver Springs, Md.

They will make their home

Mrs. William J. Martucci

in Brothheadville where the bridegroom will join his father in the practice of general medicine.

Mrs. Martucci is a 1965 graduate of York Catholic High School and received her Bachelor of Science degree in medical technology from Temple University, Philadelphia, in 1969. She was employed at the Blood Bank at York Hospital, prior to her marriage.

Dr. Martucci received a Bachelor of Science degree from Lehigh University, Bethlehem, in 1967 and graduated from Temple University School of Medicine in 1971. He interned at Allentown Hospital.

Local girls at Camp Archbald

SCRANTON — Camp Archbald continues to be a popular summer vacation spot for the girls from Monroe County. During the current period of July 9 to 21 nine girls from this area are at the camp which is run by the Scranton Pocono Girl Scout Council.

Among the activities being conducted at this time are the annual canoe trip, a bicycle trip, the World of the Arts Unit, and the Senior Counselor-in-Training program. In addition, there are units for girls who enjoy the regular camp program.

The World of the Arts Unit this year will include the art of making movies. Assisting with this will be Miss Tina Davis, who just conducted the "Flick Kick" encampment for Cadettes at Camp Laurel.

This year the canoe trip will take place in the Adirondack Mountains. In the past the girls have traveled down the Susquehanna River but this had to be changed due to the flood.

The bicycle trip will involve Cadette Girl Scouts and their counselors who will ride through the Susquehanna County roadside. Each night they will set up camp, prepare their evening meal, and enjoy the fellowship of a campfire.

Monroe County girls at the camp are:

East Stroudsburg — Kathleen Brehm, Dawn Ellenberger, Lisa Greenwood, Theresa Lilli;

Stroudsburg — Karen Reese; Kunkletown — Wendy Frable, Joanne Smith; Pocono Pines — Merrily Baxter.

Nutrition:

Door to door

By ANNE HINKLE

Asst. Home Economist

STROUDSBURG — Nutrition is in the news. And the Cooperative Extension Service is making news with its Expanded Nutrition Education Program.

The ENEP has been a vital working force for over a year in Monroe County in teaching nutrition door to door. Even though the county is young in terms of time in the program, the two nutrition aides have visited and worked with over 100 families in expanding their knowledge of nutrition.

How does the program work? An interested person is trained by aides and home economists in general nutrition and related areas. The trained aide then goes door to door — wherever there is the need or request — to assist people who want more information about the Basic Four Foods, buying tips, meal planning, nutritious snacks, preparation of foods, and nutrition in general.

The ENEP is making great strides in bridging a "nutrition gap" — the gap between eating food and eating a well-balanced diet.

Being an ENEP Aide is a paying job. But your pay is more than money; it's helping people help themselves to a healthy, more nutritious life.

Our demands for nutrition information exceed the supply we can give with only two aides in the county. If you are interested in learning more about the program and/or applying for training, please contact the Extension Office at 421-6430.

Opening lead — six of clubs.

In the great majority of deals, the most important period of the play comes early in the hand. That is when declarer can best assess his prospects and lay plans that will yield the best chance for the contract.

Since the outcome often depends on how the defenders' cards are divided, he naturally shapes his play so as to deal with all reasonable possibilities. He attempts to organize the play so as to make the contract if the cards are normally divided, and at the same time he attempts to cover the possibility that the cards are abnormally divided. Here is a typical example of the two-way view. South starts with eight top tricks, and his only real chance for a ninth lies in diamonds.

If, after winning the club, he cashes the A-K of diamonds in the hope of finding a normal 3-2 division — a 68 per cent chance — he winds up scoring only his four aces and four kings and goes down one.

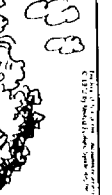

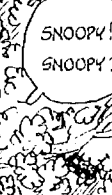

His correct play, after leading a diamond to the ace, is to return a low diamond toward the jack. This play guarantees the contract regardless of how the diamonds are divided.

Consider the actual case first. If East goes up with the queen after the low diamond return from dummy, South acquires four diamond tricks where formerly he had only two.

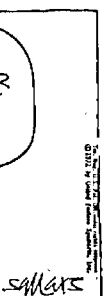

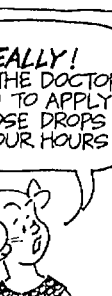

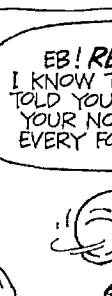

If East follows low and permits the jack to win, South still makes four diamond tricks by continuing the suit and driving out East's queen.

If West holds the Q-10-x-x of diamonds, he likewise cannot win more than one diamond trick because his holding becomes exposed and South takes full advantage of it. So, in all cases where the diamonds are divided 4-1, South makes four notrump. At the same time, this method of play produces ten tricks if it turns out that the diamonds are divided 3-2.

Pocono Playhouse sets two weeks for 'Dolly'

MOUNTAINHOME — One of the most ebullient, pleasure-loving, glibly witty women in musical comedy, Dolly Gallagher Levi, will sweep in to Pocono Playhouse for two weeks in the person of Anne Russell.

Gleaming with mischief and resounding in song, she will be setting her bonnet for Horace Vandergelder, played by Miss Russell's co-star, Coley Worth, both aided and abetted in this romp by a cast of lively Broadway regulars, including Tanny McDonald and Paul Keith.

Miss Russell comes to the Playhouse with national and international credits in "Dolly" that suggest success with a capital S for this new production. She has played Dolly from Broadway to Vietnam in the National Companies, standing by and stepping into the shoes of such stars as Mary Martin, Ginger Rogers and Betty Grable, to standing ovations on both sides of the International Dateline.

From what the critics had to say about him following the Playhouse's Silver Anniversary production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" last summer, critics will again enjoy his performance in "Hello, Dolly."

He has the reputation of

Students lauded

STROUDSBURG — Special recognition was given to students of East Stroudsburg and Pocono Mountain High Schools and Clearview elementary school at July's regular meeting of the Monroe County Crippled Children and Adults Society.

The student councils of the two high schools and the elementary pupils collected a car load of "rainy day games" to be used at Camp Daddy Allen, the camp Monroe County campers attend.

On behalf of the Monroe County Crippled Children and Adults Association, Dr. Frank Dracos, medical advisor to the society and a board member, presented a special wheelchair to Richard Lee, to be used by stroke patients in the General Hospital of Monroe County. The chair is particularly designed for the use of the handicapped.

Blue Cross grants grace

WILKES-BARRE — Flood-affected subscribers whose Blue Cross payments were due July 1 have been granted a grace period until September 1, it was announced recently by Ralph S. Smith, Blue Cross president.

Soviets breaking into game of golf

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union long ago reached the nuclear age. It is far advanced on the way toward the automobile age. But it is just at the dawn of the golf age.

A Soviet resort for foreigners is negotiating with a Japanese firm to build the first golf course in this country, Japanese sources said.

The Russians claimed to have invented beizbol (baseball) in the super-nationalist frenzy of the Stalin era when virtually every civilized gadget—from the mouse-trap to radio—was said to have been of Russian origin.

There was plenty of documentation for many of the claims. In the case of beizbol, for example, it is a fact that for hundreds of years Russian peasants have been playing a game called lapta which is roughly similar to American baseball.

But the first attempt to introduce golf into the land of workers and peasants was a dismal failure.

It occurred in 1935 when a salesman of an American golf appliances factory arrived to teach the Russians golf.

After much ado the salesman persuaded a Soviet sports organization that the game of golf need not be limited to the bourgeoisie and could be played here with profit.

A demonstration was arranged at the Gorky Park of Rest and Culture for high municipal officials, diplomats and journalists.

Uninvited were a horde of little boys who followed the guests with fascination. No sooner was a golf ball hit than a score of the urchins ran for the ball, grabbed it and disappeared in the woods. The exasperated American salesman had to give up in despair.

It was in 1960, when President Eisenhower was scheduled to come here as an official guest of the Kremlin and the Soviet hosts, as a special gesture, planned to build a golf course for him. But the downing of the American U-2 reconnaissance plane over Sverdlovsk killed that plan.

American and other western diplomats who have been pining away for the noble game have been painfully frustrated and have had to fly to Helsinki for the nearest golf course.

Although Moscow is ringed by hundreds of country retreats in the idyllic suburban birch and pine woods there is only one resort open to a foreigner.

It is the Dacha area at Zavidovo, on the Volga River, 85 miles north of the capital.

Foreigners who are lucky enough to get reservations can fish, hunt, sail and swim at the special Zavidovo resort run by a branch of the foreign ministry.

The area is enormous, but as much as the foreign guests have tried to convince the Soviet authorities to build a golf course their pleas fell on deaf ears.

Pocono Playhouse sets two weeks for 'Dolly'

MOUNTAINHOME — One of the most ebullient, pleasure-loving, guileful women in musical comedy, Dolly Gallagher Levi, will sweep into Pocono Playhouse for two weeks in the person of Anne Russell.

Gleaming with mischief and resounding in song, she will be setting her bonnet for Horace Vandergeld, played by Miss Russell's co-star, Coley Worth, both aided and abetted in this romp by a cast of lively Broadway regulars, including Tanny McDonald and Paul Keith.

Miss Russell comes to the Playhouse with national and international credits in "Dolly" that suggest success with a capital S for this new production. She has played Dolly from Broadway to Vietnam in the National Companies, standing by and stepping into the shoes of such stars as Mary Martin, Ginger Rogers and Betty Grable, to standing ovations on both sides of the International Dateline.

From what the critics had to say about him following the Playhouse's Silver Anniversary production of Cole Porter's "Anything Goes" last summer, critics will again enjoy his performance in "Hello, Dolly."

He has the reputation of causing this same reaction everywhere in playgoers and TV viewers.

Mrs. Rowena Stevens also announced that movie and stage star George Gizzard has been signed to join famed husband and wife team Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy as co-star in the straight-from-Broadway comedy success "Promenade, All," coming next to the Playhouse August 7 through 12. Area governments urged to consolidate services

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Robert Sheppard, a representative from the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP) addressed members of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce Monday on the consolidation of community services.

Sheppard said according to an EDCNP survey conducted in 1967, the number one priority problem facing northeastern Pennsylvania is "institutional improvement" of local governments.

He reported his department was undertaking studies concerning intergovernmental agreements among municipalities to improve services, and also provide better training for local officials under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act Program.

Sheppard told members of the Chamber of Commerce that Monroe County has an above average number of local governments, which because of their small size do not have the scope or capability to deal with large-scale problems.

"In the past," Sheppard said, "counties and local governments have been creatures of the state unable to consolidate facilities and do what the people want."

He recommended a petition be initiated to elect a charter commission to study different types of local governments that would improve existing conditions.

A list of possible options for better local government include: stronger area-wide or county government, merger and consolidation of boroughs, creation of sub-county service districts, and creation of county service districts that would deal with specialized problems in a given community.

Sheppard suggested local officials along with members of service clubs hold a meeting to exchange information on the creation of a multi-municipality district that would combine water services, fire protection, sewerage, street maintenance and police protection.

"The EDC will assist in providing any needed data or help required," he said.

Local boroughs and townships that have been linked during consolidation talks in the past are Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Smithfield and Middle Smithfield Townships, Stroud Township and Hamilton Township.

In other business, the Chamber passed a motion in opposition to a bill before the United States Senate providing for a 37.5 per cent minimum wage increase that would boost the minimum wage from $1.60 per hour to $2, and then to $2.20 one year later.

The House of Representatives has already passed a smaller minimum wage increase from $1.60 to $1.80, and in the third year $2. A compromise is expected in Congress before final action is taken.

The Chamber went on record as saying "the minimum wage shouldn't be raised, but if it is, the raise should be kept to a minimum."

Members of the Chamber believe an increase in wages would discourage employment and would not be in accordance with the inflationary fight being waged by President Nixon.

In other action, the Chamber adopted a resolution in support of establishing a single Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) within northeastern Pennsylvania.

Based on population, SMSA areas designate preferential locations for construction of industrial plants or retail markets. Under the new resolution, Monroe County would be combined with Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Hazleton, and Bradford, Carbon, Columbia, and Monroe counties in a 13-county region.

Ralph E. Reppert, executive director, pointed out "an added advantage of the combination would be Monroe County's eligibility for Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) funds for industrial loans, since the coal mining region in northeastern Pennsylvania would be included in our 13-county area."

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" may be considered as something for everyone because Simon, with Gobel in the starring role, has managed to sugarcoat the pill of truth and while he hits you with it, he tickles your funny bone.

Audience loves Gobel as lover

By PAT McCAIN WILLIAMS
MOUNTAINHOME — Neil Simon's comedy "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" stars gentle George Gobel unfortunately for only a one week run. The comedy has the light hearted Simon touch and a dash of mature philosophy that adds contrast and is thought provoking after the laughter subsides.

George Gobel, whose gentleness is as much a part of him as his crewcut, slow smile and drawl, is a winner as a man who thinks he'd like to have an affair but finds there's much more to it than that.

The Gobel appeal fits well in his three confrontations where he discovers, as did Monday night's audience, that while he looked for sex it was really love and like the Bluebird of Happiness, right in his own backyard.

Western Monroe covered by official plan

Sewer report satisfies state

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — The Western Report will cover the townships in western Monroe County under the regulations of the state's sewage facilities act, according to a spokesman for the Department of Environmental Resources Monday.

In a letter to the Monroe County Commissioners, Walter N. Fox, supervising environmental protection specialist for the DER, stated, "It is our opinion the 'Comprehensive Water and Sewerage Master Plan for Western Monroe County' requires no modification."

The county had requested the DER specify what exactly the Western Report needed to pass as an official sewer plan for western townships in the county.

Caught without any official sewer plan, municipalities in Monroe County faced the possibility of building halts when the DER approved amendments to the state's Sewage Facilities Act nixing sewer permits for certain subdivisions.

An agreement, with the county approved by municipalities in the mid sixties landed the entire matter in the county's lap. Under the terms of the agreement the county would provide a sweeping official plan for the municipalities to ratify.

Now, with the approval of the Western Report, the county has only the eastern municipalities to worry about. Additional work on the Tocks Island Regional Environmental Study (TIRES) is expected to make that document serviceable as an official sewerage plan in the eastern area.

In the meantime, the county Planning and Zoning Commission has requested a directive from the county commissioners regarding approval of subdivisions meeting county requirements but not state regulations. The request stumped the county commissioners Monday.

Commissioner William F. Quinn asked about local approval for subdivision providing their own plan for central sewage. He wanted to know if they could be approved by the planning commission.

Quinn said such subdivisions usually have received the approval of the DER before they submit their plans to the county Planning and Zoning Commission.

None of the commissioners appeared to have definitive answers to give the planning commission. They decided to meet and discuss the problem Thursday.

In a related matter, the Department of Environmental Resources finalized a denial for a requested extension of the Delaware River Basin Commission's plan to build a $365 million sewer treatment system for the Tocks Island Dam Region.

An earlier denial had been sent the county from the Delaware River Basin Commission.

The county made the request soon after creating a multi-utility authority for sewer, water and solid waste disposal.

Marron may head TIRAC

STROUDSBURG — Jules Marron, Sussex County planning director, said Monday he was still deciding whether to accept an offer to head the Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council after Thomas Klock leaves the post.

Marron was offered the post in a weekend meeting of the council's executive body held to discuss the council's future after Klock leaves.

A member of TIRAC since 1965, the 70-year-old Marron is scheduled for mandatory retirement from his planning job at the end of this year because of his age.

He has appealed for an extra year in his present post to the New Jersey Civil Service Association. If the association approves his request, Marron may not take the TIRAC position.

He indicated Monday he is in complete agreement with an executive committee decision to maintain the organization as a forum for information and coordination in the region.

TIRAC's future role became a matter of conjecture when members voted June 10 not to evolve into a planning body with access to federal funds.

That decision meant the council would be reduced to a $30,000 annual budget provided by $5,000 donations from the six member counties.

Coordinator role

Marron said he believes firmly in the possible role of coordinator in the region whether or not there is a Tocks Island Dam.

His well-documented position on the project is neither pro or con the dam.

"Get with it or get off it," Marron said, referring to his belief enough time has elapsed to make a decision on the Tocks Island Dam once and for all.

He said he would work to achieve a resolution of the 10 year old project as soon as possible.

Stating some member counties could have done more to "get their house in order," Marron said he urges counties in the region to prepare for an influx of population even if there is no dam.

Always an ardent supporter of TIRAC, serving as vice chairman of the unit, Marron believes strongly in regional planning. But he also believes strongly in the concept of home rule implementation for regional plans.

Marron promised the council members he would make his decision on the directorship as soon as possible.

S-burg directors approve middle school bond issue

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg school directors and district authority members unanimously approved a $5,140,000 bond issue Monday night to finance construction of a middle school.

Letters of intent will also be sent to contractors for awards totaling $4,238,955. Construction of the Chipperfield Drive school is expected to begin in a month and scheduled to open in September, 1974.

The bond issue will run for 18 years, beginning in 1973, with the district scheduled to pay $457,327.50 the first year, $437,950 for the next 16 and $437,615 in 1990. The average interest rate will be 4.98 per cent.

There was little discussion on the issue. Directors and authority members met in closed session Wednesday night with L.F. Rothschild, New York City banking investors, to iron out finances.

Rothschild will purchase $5,135,000 of the issue, with the remaining $5,000 made available in $100 denominations.

Directors picked the 18-year plan over another Rothschild proposal for 20 years in the closed session, reported Walter Palmer, a firm official. The 20 year plan had an estimated $462,000 annual cost, he said, based on an average interest rate of 5.5 per cent.

Total project cost was set at $5,612,714. School Board President Donald Stone said the middle school won't create a tax rise next year, but wouldn't elaborate on whether it would in future years.

Interest rates range from 3.1 per cent in 1973 to 5.35 per cent in 1990. Cost to the district for the issue totals $7,902,742.50.

The Vito Construction Co., Stroudsburg, was picked for general construction at $2,355,840. The company, general contractors for the Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School, submitted the lowest base bid at $2,238,000.

Directors picked eight alternates in Wednesday's closed session, however, including a $55,000 bus canopy and a $34,700 resilient resinous gym floor.

The contract for plumbing construction leaned to H.L. Cleveland Co. Inc., East Stroudsburg, at $299,000. No alternates were picked.

Joseph A. Wright Co., Wilkes-Barre, got the nod for heating and air conditioning at $239,438. The company, Jr. Co. receiving the electrical construction contract at $683,047 and Devin Products Co. getting the food service equipment contract at $261,630.

Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., Stroudsburg, was chosen as trustee for the bond issue. The company won't charge the district for its services and agreed to purchase $300,000 in bonds.

Monroe Security was picked over the First National Bank of Eastern Pennsylvania, offering its services for $500 annually, and Northeast National Bank, bidding at $1,500 the first year and $1,000 yearly thereafter.

Planners hold hot meeting

By MAUREEN RUFÉ
Pocono Record Reporter

KUNKLETOWN — If there is one word to describe Eldred Township's Planning Commission meeting Monday night, it would be hot — and not just because of the weather.

Throughout the evening, Chairman Jim Price dragged his commission through one controversial issue after another, which saw every member of the board flare his temper at some time during the session.

Maintaining a virtually immovable position, member George Brands opposed every issue that came up for debate during the early part of the meeting.

Between several humorous quips about Eldred's solicitor, James Wimmer, Brands attacked the Monroe County Subdivision Ordinance, and looked at Eldred's supervisors and frankly blurted out, "I don't like officials and I don't like supervisors!"

The first issue to come up for debate at the long session was a small parcel of land retained by resident Frederick Blouse after he subdivided a Kunkletown land tract into 13 lots.

The commission contended that when Blouse added a trailer and converted a barn into an apartment on the land, which was already occupied by a three-family dwelling, he further subdivided illegally.

Douglas Williams, administrator of the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission, appeared before the local board to help interpret the situation. He said the 13-lot development should be considered as only one unit subdivision, and said unless the retained land was measured by meets and bounds or represented sale or lease of the property, Blouse was not subdividing illegally.

"A man has the right to rent a home, rent a trailer or an apartment if he is going to retain the land," stressed Williams. "If he is going to convey any of the property, then it's a different story."

After Williams backed up his position by reading from the county subdivision ordinance, Brands began his first attack.

"You can read that book till you are blue in the face. It's more contradictory than the Bible," said Brands. "It's been changed so many times since we've been here, you don't know what to believe."

The adamant planner contended that "any time property is used for something for which it was not intended, then you have a subdivision."

Williams advised the commission to consult with their attorney if they wished to take further action on the matter.

Tempers flared a second time after Price asked the Eldred supervisors for their commitment to proceed with zoning in the township once the group's subdivision ordinance was passed.

After a quick okay, the supervisors began to hedge on the issue. Adam Meckes, chairman of the supervisors, began qualifying his quick approval and said he only wanted zoning if the township could get it cheap enough.

The turnaround angered the planners, who took the "hedging" as a personal affront.

College faculties consider $7 million contract offer

EAST STROUDSBURG — Faculty members at East Stroudsburg State College have joined 13 other state college faculties in considering a $7 million salary and fringe benefit package.

The ESSC faculty will have a hearing on the contract August 4 in the presence of officials from the Association of Pennsylvania State College and University Faculties — Pennsylvania Association for Higher Education (APSCUP-PAHE).

Ratification of the agreement with the state is expected shortly after the hearing.

The state and the collective bargaining unit representing instructors and professors reached a tentative contract after eight months of negotiations.

The contract, which is retroactive to Nov. 2, 1971, provides for a 25 per cent increase spread over five pay periods. It also calls for a "Wage re-opener" clause in the 1973-74 school year.

With two of the increases already paid, the others are scheduled for Sept. 1, Jan. 1 and Sept. 1, 1973.

Instructors who are currently beginning at $8,000 a year, will go to $8,400 in September and to $8,820 next January.

For assistant professors, the jumps will be from a current $9,720 to $10,200 in September and to $10,720 in January. Associate professors will go from a current $11,800 to $12,400 to $13,020.

Full professors will jump from a current $14,360 to $15,080 to $15,820.

Effective Sept. 1, the state will assume full cost of individual and family health, hospitalization, major medical and life insurance premiums.

Don Bortz, public relations for the ESSC APSCUP-PAHE, said the contract formalizes several aspects of the faculty's work environment that were vague before the agreement.

It insures faculty a voice in policy making, increases their fringe benefits, establishes work leads and outlines procedure for retrenchment, according to Bortz.

MHMR pleads poverty

STROUDSBURG — More services than money to fund them is still the story with the Carbon-Monroe-Pike Mental Health Mental Retardation program.

In a letter to the Monroe County Commissioners Monday, MHMR Administrator Thomas Foley explained a possible payment problem for clients of Burnley Workshop in terms of the agency's chronic budget cuts.

Foley said it is not yet certain what problems will be encountered in paying his agency's bills. Nor will the problems be known until all bills are in for this month he said.

Once the bills are in, budget transfers will be made to establish payment.

"Since 1969, the Carbon-Monroe-Pike MHMR program has consistently requested state funds to completely reimburse the Burnley Workshop for rehabilitation and training services," wrote Foley.

Each year the budget requests have been cut making the available funds insufficient to meet costs, Foley continued.

He said he does not yet know what the budget cuts at the state level this year will mean to the continued funding of the MHMR program.

Nothing can be done about the persistent problem of funding except to keep on telling politicians not enough money is coming through to completely fund the agency, Foley said.

Regional jail

In other communications Monday, the commissioners received a letter regarding the feasibility of a multi-county detention facility for Carbon, Monroe and Pike counties.

From the national clearing agency for criminal planning and justice, a filter for Law Enforcement Assistance Administration money, came information on "Correctional Environments" and "Guidelines for the Planning and Design of Regional and Community Correctional Centers for Adults."

County Commission Chairman Mrs. Nancy B. Shukaitis said the information had been sent along to Sheriff Forrest B. Sebring for review.

A request for information on the number and type of criminal offenders in Monroe County was also passed to the sheriff.

Encephalitis-carrying mosquitoes were the subject of another letter to the commissioners. County resident Mrs. Henry W. Baumann wrote stating she trusted the county officials would be doing whatever is necessary to control the pest immediately.

The commissioners have set up a meeting with two faculty members from East Stroudsburg State College on July 24 at 3 p.m. to get the latest information on mosquito control.

Cooling it

Bobby Davis, 13, of East Stroudsburg, knows how to keep it cool. Few things tasted better Monday than a popsicle. Weather Bureau advisors indicate the hot, humid weather will continue in the area at least through Wednesday.

Area governments urged to consolidate services

By BRUCE POSTEN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — Robert Sheppard, a representative from the Economic Development Council of Northeastern Pennsylvania (EDCNP) addressed members of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce Monday on the consolidation of community services.

Sheppard said according to an EDCNP survey conducted in 1967, the number one priority problem facing northeastern Pennsylvania is "institutional improvement" of local governments.

He reported his department was undertaking studies concerning intergovernmental agreements among municipalities to improve services, and also provide better training for local officials under the Intergovernmental Personnel Act Program.

Sheppard told members of the Chamber of Commerce that Monroe County has an above average number of local governments, which because of their small size do not have the scope or capability to deal with large-scale problems.

Audience loves Gobel as lover

By PAT MCCAIN WILLIAMS
MOUNTAINHOME — Neil Simon's comedy "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" stars gentle George Gobel unfortunately for only a one week run. The comedy has the light hearted Simon touch and a dash of mature philosophy that adds contrast and is thought provoking after the laughter subsides.

George Gobel, whose gentleness is as much a part of him as his crewcut, slow smile and drawl, is a winner as a man who thinks he'd like to have an affair but finds there's much more to it than that.

The Gobel appeal fits well in his three confrontations where he discovers, as did Monday night's audience, that while he looked for sex it was really love and like the Bluebird of Happiness, right in his own backyard.

Miss Carmen Alvarez is cold,

"In the past," Sheppard said, "counties and local governments have been creatures of the state unable to consolidate facilities and do what the people want."

He recommended a petition be initiated to elect a charter commission to study different types of local governments that would improve existing conditions.

A list of possible options for better local government include: stronger area-wide or county government, merger and consolidation of boroughs, creation of sub-county service districts, and creation of county service districts that would deal with specialized problems in a given community.

Sheppard suggested local officials along with members of service clubs hold a meeting to exchange information on the creation of a multi-municipality district that would combine water services, fire protection, sewerage, street maintenance and police protection.

"The EDC will assist in providing any needed data or help required," he said.

callous, colorful and clever as a woman of Polish persuasion whose problems aren't any of George's.

Miss Jane Curtin is silly, scintillating, sexy and psychotic and once again communication is not established leaving George to seek out Miss Stella Longo who is depressed, disgusted, and disillusioned.

Ken Lewis has come up with the set that is more in keeping with what playgoers have come to expect of him. Dan Willoughby did a good job on lighting and sound and it's very unobtrusiveness complemented the set.

"Last of the Red Hot Lovers" may be considered as something for everyone because Simon, with Gobel in the starring role, has managed to sugarcoat the pill of truth and while he hits you with it, he tickles your funny bone.

Local boroughs and townships that have been linked during consolidation talks in the past are Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Smithfield and Middle Smithfield Townships, Stroud Township and Hamilton Township.

In other business, the Chamber passed a motion in opposition to a bill before the United States Senate providing for a 37.5 per cent minimum wage increase that would boost the minimum wage from $1.60 per hour to $2.20 one year later.

The House of Representatives has already passed a smaller minimum wage increase from $1.60 to $1.80, and to $2 one year later. This bill would apply to workers prior to 1966, and those covered later would get a three-step increase — first, $1.70, then $1.80, and in the third year $2. A compromise is expected in Congress before final action is taken.

The Chamber went on record as saying "the minimum wage shouldn't be raised, but if it is, the raise should be kept to a minimum."

Members of the Chamber believe an increase in wages would discourage employment and would not be in accordance with the inflationary fight being waged by President Nixon.

In other action, the Chamber adopted a resolution in support of establishing a single Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area (SMSA) within northeastern Pennsylvania.

Based on population, SMSA areas designate preferential locations for construction of industrial plants or retail markets. Under the new resolution, Monroe County would be combined with Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Hazleton, and Bradford, Carbon, Columbia, and Montour counties in a 13-county region.

Ralph E. Reppert, executive director, pointed out "an added advantage of the combination would be Monroe County's eligibility for Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority (PIDA) funds for industrial loans, since the coal mining region in northeastern Pennsylvania would be included in our 13-county area."

Western Monroe covered by official plan

Sewer report satisfies state

By GARY GROSSMAN
Pocono Record Reporter
STROUDSBURG — The Weston Report will cover the townships in western Monroe County under the regulations of the state's sewage facilities act, according to a spokesman for the Department of Environmental Resources Monday.

In a letter to the Monroe County Commissioners, Walter N. Fox, supervising environmental protection specialist for the DER, stated, "It is our opinion the 'Comprehensive Water and Sewerage Master Plan for Western Monroe County' requires no modification."

The county had requested the DER specify what exactly the Weston Report needed to pass as an official sewer plan for western townships in the county.

Caught without any official sewer plan, municipalities in Monroe County faced the possibility of building halts when the DER approved amendments to the state's Sewage Facilities Act nixing sewer permits for certain subdivisions.

An agreement, with the county approved by municipalities in the mid sixties landed the entire matter in the county's lap. Under the terms of the agreement the county would provide a sweeping official plan for the municipalities to ratify.

Now, with the approval of the Weston Report, the county has only the eastern municipalities to worry about. Additional work on the Tocks Island Regional Environmental Study (TIRES) is expected to make that document serviceable as an official sewerage plan in the eastern area.

In the meantime, the county Planning and Zoning Commission has requested a directive from the county commissioners regarding approval of subdivisions meeting county requirements but not state regulations.

The request stumped the county commissioners Monday.

Commissioner William F. Quinn asked about local approval for subdivision providing their own plan for central sewerage. He wanted to know if they could be approved by the planning commission.

Quinn said such subdivisions usually have received the approval of the DER before they submit their plans to the county Planning and Zoning Commission.

None of the commissioners appeared to have definitive answers to give the planning commission. They decided to meet and discuss the problem Thursday.

In a related matter, the Department of Environmental Resources finalized a denial for a requested extension of the Delaware River Basin Commission's plan to build a $365 million sewer treatment system for the Tocks Island Dam Region.

An earlier denial had been sent the county from the Delaware River Basin Commission.

The county made the request soon after creating a multi-utility authority for sewer, water and solid waste disposal.

Bench, Aaron top quartet of N.L. all-star repeaters

NEW YORK (UPI)—Johnny Bench and Hank Aaron topped a quartet of repeaters from the 1971 squad for the National League All-Star team announced Monday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench, coming off a mediocre 1971 campaign, was the top vote-getter in the poll of fans in the U.S. and Canada. The Cincinnati catcher polled a total of 1,229,677 votes in a record response by fans who cast 3,171,556 votes for the starting lineups for the contest against the American League All-Stars set for Tuesday night, July 25 in Atlanta.

Aaron, bidding to eclipse Babe Ruth's home run record, was named on 1,116,694 ballots.

Joe Torre of St. Louis picked up 1,180,613 votes to easily grab the third base slot again. It will be Joe's fifth start as an All

Johnny Bench

Hank Aaron

Star, although his first three selections to the dream team were as a catcher.

Aaron will be joined in the outfield by Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell, both of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Clemente topped the million mark with 1,091,423 while Stargell, the fourth repeater from last year's team, was picked by 717,597.

The starting outfield of Aaron, Clemente and Stargell had hit 45 home runs and driven in 144 runs through games of July 16.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh were the only clubs placing more than one starter on the NL Stars.

For Bench, it was his fourth straight selection, as it was for shortstop Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, but Kessinger was in the narrowest race of all, edging the New York Mets' Bud Harrelson by exactly 3,000 votes, 665,921 to 662,921.

Cincinnati placed Joe Morgan at second, as Morgan, traded to the Reds by Houston in the winter, edged Glenn Beckert of the Cubs, 654,035 to 640,748.

Boston's John Kennedy fires ball to Danny Cater to complete double play after taking ball hit by Angels' Curt Motton and forcing Leroy Stanton.

Danny Cater(s) to Angels; Boston gains 4-1 victory

BOSTON (UPI)—Danny Cater looped a two-run double down the right field line with the bases-loaded and two out in the sixth inning Monday night to snap a 1-1 tie and power the Boston Red Sox to a 4-1 win over the California Angels.

Cater, who booted Ken

Berry's ground ball in the top of the sixth enabling Sandy Alomar to score from third, went to the plate after relief pitcher Don Rose intentionally walked Carlton Fisk to fill the bases.

He hit Rose's first pitch just past the out-stretched glove of rightfielder Leroy Stanton to score Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith with the winning runs.

Cater doubled to open the eighth and scored on John Kennedy's base hit to left field, closing out the scoring.

Bench, Aaron top quartet of N.L. all-star repeaters

NEW YORK (UPI)—Johnny Bench and Hank Aaron topped a quartet of repeaters from the 1971 squad for the National League All-Star team announced Monday by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench, coming off a mediocre 1971 campaign, was the top vote-getter in the poll of fans in the U.S. and Canada. The Cincinnati catcher polled a total of 1,229,677 votes in a record response by fans who cast 3,171,556 votes for the starting lineups for the contest against the American League All-Stars set for Tuesday night, July 25 in Atlanta.

Aaron, bidding to eclipse Babe Ruth's home run record, was named on 1,116,694 ballots.

Joe Torre of St. Louis picked up 1,180,613 votes to easily grab the third base slot again. It will be Joe's fifth start as an All

Johnny Bench

Hank Aaron

Star, although his first three selections to the dream team were as a catcher.

Aaron will be joined in the

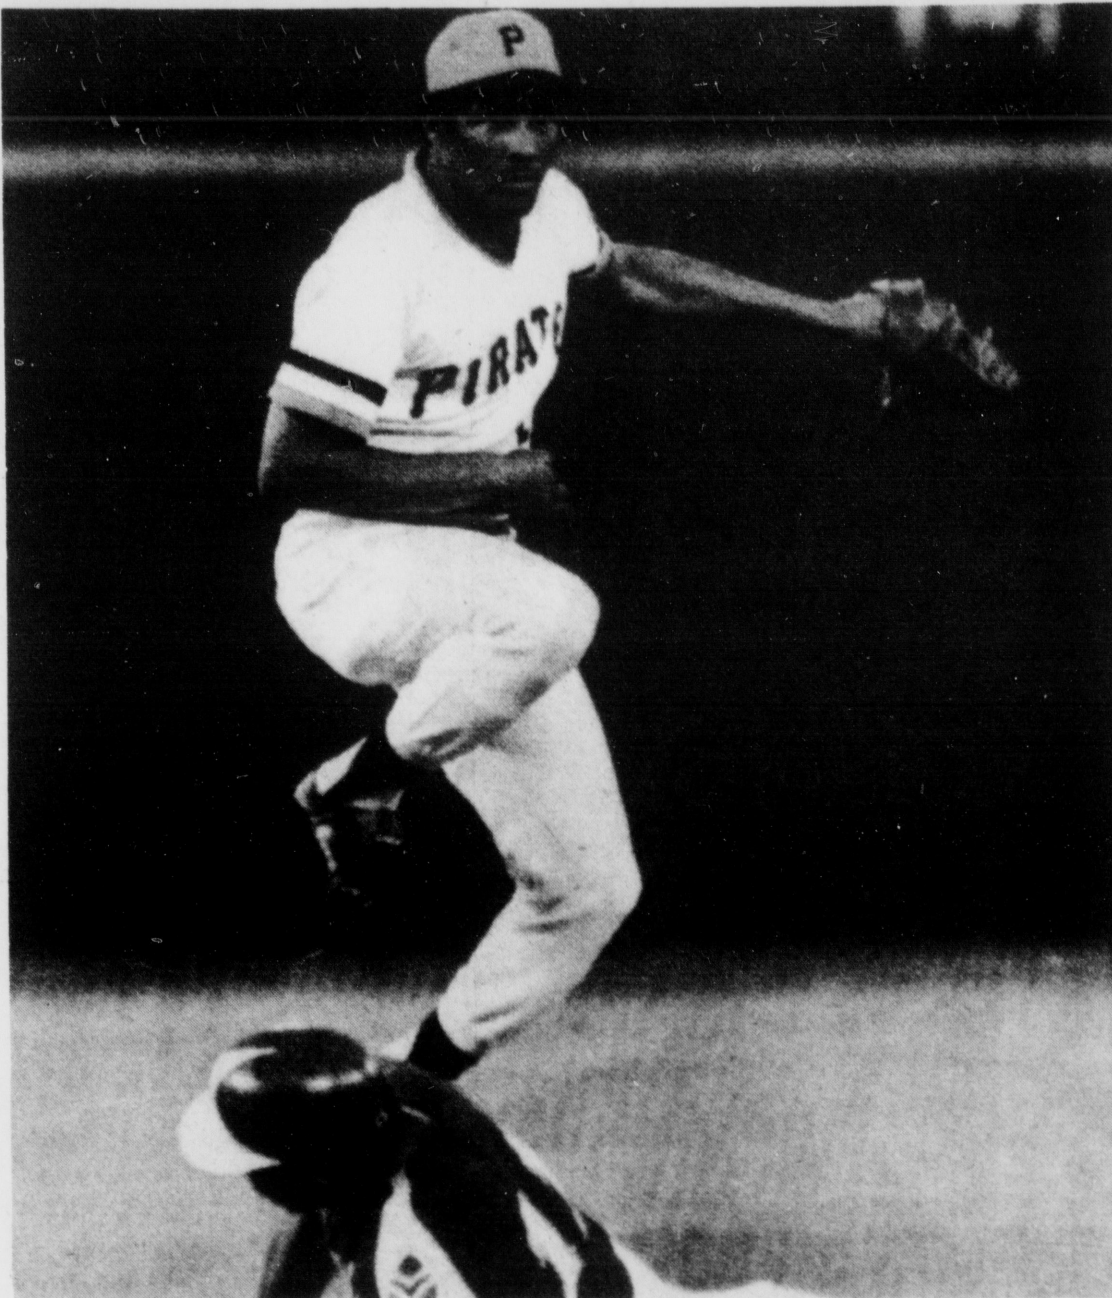

1,091,423 while Stargell, the fourth repeater from last year's team, was picked by 717,597.

The starting outfield of Aaron, Clemente and Stargell had hit 45 home runs and driven in 144 runs through games of July 16.

Cincinnati and Pittsburgh were the only clubs placing more than one starter on the NL Stars.

For Bench, it was his fourth straight selection, as it was for shortstop Don Kessinger of the Chicago Cubs, but Kessinger was in the narrow race of all, edging the New York Mets' Bud Harrelson by exactly 3,000 votes, 665,921 to 662,921.

Cincinnati placed Joe Morgan at second, as Morgan, traded to the Reds by Houston in the winter, edged Glenn Beckert of the Cubs, 654,035 to 640,748.

Pittsburgh's Jackie Hernandez evades hard slide by Darrell Evans of Atlanta and throws to first to complete double play on Marty Perez Monday night.

Bettenhausen remains 'serious' in intensive care

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Auto racer Merle Bettenhausen, who lost his right arm and suffered burns in a fiery crash Sunday, was listed in serious but stable condition Monday.

The son of Tony Bettenhausen Sr., who was killed testing a car at Indianapolis in 1961, remained in the intensive care unit at the Burn Center of the University of Michigan Medical Center.

Bettenhausen, 29, of Tinley Park, Ill., was injured when his Grant King race car slammed into the wall in the No. 2 turn on the fourth lap of the Indy-type portion of the Michigan 200 at the Michigan International Speedway at nearby Irosh Hills.

Bettenhausen's car tore down a guard rail for more than 1,000 feet. The entire right side of

Rams' quarterback's lung collapses

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Los Angeles Rams suffered a collapsed lung on his first day of practice Monday and was rushed to a hospital. Physicians were optimistic he would be back in action in about a month.

The 31-year-old athlete completed a series of stretching exercises and was throwing the football in a non-contact drill when he complained of feeling ill.

He was taken to Long Beach Community Hospital, where a tube was inserted into his right lung through a small incision in his back.

Dr. Jules Rasinski Jr., the Rams' team physician, said the tube would remain in place for at least a day, but it was possible Gabriel could be released from the hospital as early as Wednesday.

The physician said Gabriel suffered from spontaneous pneumothorax, a rupturing of a small air cyst at the top of the lung. He said it is a common illness which is not necessarily caused by physical activity.

Rasinski said if all goes well and there is no leakage from the lung, the 11-year National Football Conference veteran could begin jogging some 10 days after leaving the hospital.

Stargell ignites Pittsburgh to 6-5 victory over Braves

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Willie Stargell drove in four runs—three on his 19th homer and the other on a tie-breaking sacrifice fly—as the Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Atlanta Braves, 6-5, Monday night for their fifth straight victory.

The win went to Ramon Hernandez (5-0) in relief while Joe Hoerner was tagged with his first loss against one victory.

With the score tied at 5-5 in the eighth inning, Gene Cline doubled, took third on Al Oliver's infield single and scored the winning run when Stargell flied deep to left.

Stargell's homer, a 410-foot shot following a walk to Vic Davalillo and Cline's single, gave the Pirates a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

But the Braves cut the margin to 3-2 in the third on singles by Gil Garrido and starting pitcher Ron Scheuler and a walk to Dusty Baker, filling the bases with one out.

Carlton nearing Koufax' strikeout record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The year was 1965, and Sandy Koufax was chopping up National League batters on his way to a modern record of 382 strikeouts.

In St. Louis, a tall, skinny, rookie lefthander was averaging almost a strikeout an inning in the few times he worked. His name was Steve Carlton.

Carlton retired 21 men on strikes in 25 innings of pitching for the Cardinals last year, a statistic almost lost in years of baseball records. Now, the man many think is the finest lefthanded pitcher since Koufax is making a run at the record some thought would never be challenged.

By the second week in July, Carlton had racked up 182 strikeouts in 171 innings. Koufax, who went 336 innings to post his mark, had 168 strikeouts at the end of June, 1965.

What makes the challenge particularly surprising is that Koufax hurled his way into the record books with a pennant-winning club, while Carlton is making his bid for baseball fame with a Philadelphia team hopelessly locked in last place with the worst win-loss mark in the major leagues.

Carlton has been called "The Franchise" and with good reason. He has collected seven of the club's 12 wins since May 30 and twirled 13 of its 20 complete games while building a 12-6 record to share the league lead in victories.

The battle to better the Koufax mark will be all uphill because Carlton was cheated out of at least two starting assignments by the baseball strike which shortened the Phillies' schedule to 156 games.

The Phils are a different team when Carlton pitches because Carlton, 27, is a different kind of pitcher. He's a cheerleader with pinpoint control, a student of metaphysics who throws one of the best fastballs in the business and a man who talks to himself while ripping through opposing batting orders.

"This is a mental game," he said recently after the Phillies bounced back from a 2-0 deficit to give him his sixth straight triumph. "It's tough enough fighting the other guy without fighting yourself. I feel you've got to jack them (the team) up."

That's exactly what he does during every game he pitches, walking from player to player in the dugout reminding them of "little things."

Leftfielder Greg Luzinski, whose two singles and home run helped Carlton to his 11th triumph, said, "You can't let down when he's pitching."

When he's not talking to his teammates, he's talking to himself on the mound to keep his concentration high or off the field—reading metaphysics, as he has since he was 14, "because it's the only subject that interests me."

Somewhere between the cheerleading and the metaphysics is where the strikeouts come in.

Carlton, who insists he doesn't go for strikeouts except in situations "when I need them" admits the ability to gun down big league hitters is about equal parts positive thinking and strength.

The strength comes from Carlton's 6-5, 210-pound frame and off-season weight-lifting. The positive thinking is part and parcel of his self-styled approach.

"I made myself the pitcher I am," Carlton says, explaining matter-of-factly he has not been greatly influenced by any other pitchers or coaches during his career. "I have my own style."

Veteran catcher Tim McCarver, who handled Carlton as a rookie with the Cardinals and caught him this season before being traded by the Phils to Montreal, said Carlton's teammates can "feel the strength of his character and his optimism rubbing off."

It's physical strength that

Carlton says allows him to blow the ball past so many hitters.

"Strength has everything to do with it," Carlton said. "Koufax wasn't big, but he had a hell of an arm."

Carlton, who broke in when Koufax was at the top of his form, said he enjoyed watching the Dodger ace "just for the pleasure of it."

"He was the most perfect pitcher I've ever seen. He had all the mechanics—delivery, control, placement."

According to Carlton, placement is the most important element, as many batters will admit. He's never had control problems and feels his placement is better than ever because of "maturity" and having "been around a while."

"Koufax put it all together when he was about 27," Carlton noted.

Asked if he wants Koufax' record, Carlton, who has a 2.53 ERA, said:

"I'd rather have 15 or 16 wins right now. My one thought is to win when I go out there."

Those victories are the most important consideration come contract time, Carlton said.

"When you put everything (wins, earned run average and strikeouts) together, then you're sitting pretty," he said. "I just come with my three pitches. Each compliments the other."

He estimated he gets two of every three strikeouts with his fastball. He also tosses a curve and a slider.

The Florida-born lefty does not think of himself as a strikeout pitcher. He could have fooled the rest of baseball because he retired a major league record 19 Mets in 1969, and this year has gotten the third one past 10 or more hitters in six games, recording a season high 14 strikeouts against the Giants in April.

He is running away with the strikeout championship. His nearest competitor is Detroit's Mickey Lolich with 136.

Steve Carlton — nearing record.

Allison to join running of Pennsylvania 500 race

LONG POND — Bobby Allison, who won the Northern 300 Sunday at Trenton, heads a list of 22 entries received Monday for the July 30 Pennsylvania 500 at Pocono International Raceway.

Allison, Hueytown, Ala., was second to Richard Petty in 1971 earnings for the Grand National division of NASCAR.

Last year Allison won 10 Grand National events and a total of $236,295 and will be joining Petty in the NASCAR invasion of the United States Auto Club ranks vying for the lion's share of the guaranteed $75,000 purse. Allison will be driving the Coca-Cola Special, a 1970 Dodge.

Gary Bettenhausen, who passed up a chance to win Sunday's Michigan 200 to comfort his brother, Merle, after he was seriously injured in a crash during the race, will try for back to back wins at Pocono.

Bettenhausen, who led 138 laps of the 1972 Indianapolis 500, will drive Roger Penske's Sunoco-McLaren Special in the Schaefer 500 July 29. He will come back the next day driving a 1972 Dodge, the Trailer Train Special, entered by Ray Darnell of Deerfield, Ill.

Darnell will also be driving in the Pennsylvania 500 in a Team Train Dodge. Both Bettenhausen and Darnell competed in the 1971 race. Bettenhausen took 15th, being sidelined with a lug bolt problem after leading the race, and Darnell was 24th. He blew an engine early in the race.

Butch Hartman, Zaneville, Ohio, the defending USAC stock car champion and winner of the inaugural race, will also compete this year.

Hartman, a 32-year-old veteran who established the one-lap and 500-mile records in the 1971 event of 146.123 miles per hour and 116.760 mph, is assigned to a 1972 Dodge Charger, Hartman's White Autocar, Inc. Special.

Al Loquasto of Easton is assigned to a team car in another 1972 Dodge Charger. Loquasto, a furniture dealer who specialized in championship racing, is one of several championship drivers who will be seeking a starting spot in both races.

Carroll saves 21st; Reds defeat Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI)—Clay Carroll picked up his 21st save of the season Monday in helping the Cincinnati Reds to their seventh straight victory by crushing the Chicago Cubs, 7-2.

The Reds backed up starter Wayne Simpson with seven runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, while routing rookie Rick Reuschel, who was tagged with his third loss against three wins.

Carroll, who gave up a walk in the ninth when he gave up singles to pinch-hitter J.C. Martin, Don Kessinger and Billy Williams to fill the bases with one out. Carroll then got Joe Pepitone to fly out and Jose Cardenal on a forceout at the plate to end the game.

The Reds collected 14 hits, including three by Joe Morgan and Pete Rose's second home run of the season.

Carlton nearing Koufax' strikeout record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The year was 1965, and Sandy Koufax was chopping up National League batters on his way to a modern record of 382 strikeouts.

In St. Louis, a tall, skinny, rookie lefthander was averaging almost a strikeout an inning in the few times he worked. His name was Steve Carlton.

Carlton retired 21 men on strikes in 25 innings of pitching for the Cardinals that year, a statistic almost lost in reams of baseball records. Now, the man many think is the finest lefthanded pitcher since Koufax is making a run at the record some thought would never be challenged.

By the second week in July, Carlton had racked up 182 strikeouts in 171 innings. Koufax, who went 336 innings to post his mark, had 168 strikeouts at the end of June, 1965.

What makes the challenge particularly surprising is that Koufax hurled his way into the record books with a pennant-winning club, while Carlton is making his bid for baseball fame with a Philadelphia team hopelessly locked in last place with the worst won-lost mark in the major leagues.

Carlton has been called "The Franchise" and with good reason. He has collected seven of the club's 12 wins since May 30 and twirled 13 of its 20 complete games while building a 12-6 record to share the league lead in victories.

The battle to better the Koufax mark will be all uphill because Carlton was cheated out of at least two starting assignments by the baseball strike which shortened the Phillies' schedule to 156 games.

The Phils are a different team when Carlton pitches because Carlton, 27, is a different kind of pitcher. He's a cheerleader with pinpoint control, a student of metaphysics who throws one of the best fastballs in the business and a man who talks to himself while ripping through opposing batting orders.

"This is a mental game," he said recently after the Phillies bounced back from a 2-0 deficit to give him his sixth straight triumph. "It's tough enough fighting the other guy without fighting yourself. I feel you've got to jack them (the team) up."

That's exactly what he does during every game he pitches, walking from player to player in the dugout reminding them of "little things."

Leftfielder Greg Luzinski, whose two singles and home run helped Carlton to his 11th triumph, said, "You can't let down when he's pitching."

When he's not talking to his teammates, he's talking to himself on the mound to keep his concentration high or off the field—reading metaphysics, as he has since he was 14, "because it's the only subject that interests me."

Somewhere between the cheerleading and the metaphysics is where the strikeouts come in.

Carlton, who insists he doesn't go for strikeouts except in situations "when I need them," admits the ability to gun down big league hitters is about equal parts positive thinking and strength.

The strength comes from Carlton's 6-5, 210-pound frame and off-season weight-lifting. The positive thinking is part and parcel of his self-styled approach.

"I made myself the pitcher I am," Carlton says, explaining matter-of-factly he has not been greatly influenced by any other pitchers or coaches during his career. "I have my own style."

Veteran catcher Tim McCarver, who handled Carlton as a rookie with the Cardinals and caught him this season before being traded by the Phils to Montreal, said Carlton's teammates can "feel the strength of his character and his optimism rubbing off."

It's physical strength that

Carlton says allows him to blow the ball past so many hitters.

"Strength has everything to do with it," Carlton said. "Koufax wasn't big, but he had a hell of an arm."

Carlton, who broke in when Koufax was at the top of his form, said he enjoyed watching the Dodger ace "just for the pleasure of it."

"He was the most perfect pitcher I've ever seen. He had all the mechanics—delivery, control, placement."

According to Carlton, placement is the most important element, as many batters will admit. He's never had control problems and feels his placement is better than ever because of "maturity" and having "been around a while."

"Koufax put it all together when he was about 27," Carlton noted.

Asked if he wants Koufax' record, Carlton, who has a 2.53 ERA, said:

"I'd rather have 15 or 16 wins right now. My one thought is to win when I go out there."

Those victories are the most important consideration come contract time, Carlton said.

"When you put everything (wins, earned run average and strikeouts) together, then you're sitting pretty," he said. "I just come with my three pitches. Each compliments the other."

He estimated he gets two of every three strikeouts with his fastball. He also tosses a curve and a slider.

The Florida-born lefty does not think of himself as a strikeout pitcher. He could have fooled the rest of baseball because he retired a major league record 19 Mets in 1969, and this year has gotten the third one past 10 or more hitters in six games, recording a season high 14 strikeouts against the Giants in April.

He is running away with the strikeout championship. His nearest competitor is Detroit's Mickey Lolich with 136.

Allison to join running of Pennsylvania 500 race

LONG POND — Bobby Allison, who won the Northern 300 Sunday at Trenton, heads a list of 22 entries received Monday for the July 30 Pennsylvania 500 at Pocono International Raceway.

Allison, Hueytown, Ala., was second to Richard Petty in 1971 earnings for the Grand National division of NASCAR.

Last year Allison won 10 Grand National events and a total of $236,295 and will be joining Petty in the NASCAR invasion of the United States Auto Club ranks vying for the lion's share of the guaranteed $75,000 purse. Allison will be driving the Coca-Cola Special, a 1970 Dodge.

Gary Bettenhausen, who passed up a chance to win Sunday's Michigan 200 to comfort his brother, Merle, after he was seriously injured in a crash during the race, will try for back to back wins at Pocono.

Bettenhausen, who led 138 laps of the 1972 Indianapolis 500, will drive Roger Penske's Sunoco-McLaren Special in the Schaefer 500 July 29. He will come back the next day driving a 1972 Dodge, the Trailer Train Special, entered by Ray Darnell of Deerfield, Ill.

Darnell will also be driving in the Pennsylvania 500 in a Team Train Dodge. Both Bettenhausen and Darnell competed in the 1971 race. Bettenhausen took 15th, being sidelined with a lug bolt problem after leading the race, and Darnell was 24th. He blew an engine early in the race.

Butch Hartman, Zaneville, Ohio, the defending USAC stock car champion and winner of the inaugural race, will also compete this year.

Hartman, a 32-year-old veteran who established the one-lap and 500-mile records in the 1971 event of 146.123 miles per hour and 116.760 mph, is assigned to a 1972 Dodge Charger, Hartman's White Autocar, Inc. Special.

Al Loquasto of Easton is assigned to a team car in another 1972 Dodge Charger. Loquasto, a furniture dealer who specialized in championship racing, is one of several championship drivers who will be seeking a starting spot in both races.

Also included in Monday's entries were:

Bobby Wawak, Villa Park, Ill., 1970 Dodge; Greg Donahue, Milwaukee, Wis., 1972 Chevelle; Jigger Sirois, Hammond, Ind., 1970 Ford Mustang; Rich Ortel, Palatine, Ill., 1972 Ford Torino; Dale Koehler, Cedar Grove, Wis., 1972 Chevrolet Monte Carlo; Roland Early, Toledo, Ohio, 1972 Chevrolet Camaro; George Wiltshire, Oakland, Calif., 1970 Dodge Charger and Roy A. Scheinblum nears dream, but almost was nightmare

DETROIT (UPI) — Rich Scheinblum is on his way to his share of the American dream. For awhile, though, it was a nightmare.

Scheinblum plays right field for the Kansas City Royals and has been leading the American League in hitting percentage.

"You think of all those major leaguers who have 20 years in," Scheinblum says. "They don't know how lucky they are."

"They've never been to the minor leagues. It's hell."

The Cleveland Indians signed the switch-hitter in 1964 and brought him up in 1965, 1967, and 1968 and 1969. The Washington Senators had Scheinblum with them in 1971, but sent him down to Denver so he could hit .388 and lead the league in everything.

"This is the first club that's given me a real shot," he said. "I never had a real chance to play before. I'm grateful for that."

"Sure, you get discouraged," Scheinblum said, "but it was harder on my wife. It nearly drove her out of her mind."

His "best" major league season was 1969, when he spent the whole year with the Indians.

"I always get off to a slow start," Scheinblum said. "I remember I started the first two games that season. I went 0-for-four against Denny McLain and 0-for-three against Mickey Lolich the next day. I went 0-for-11."

"Then I was on the bench," the 29-year-old said. "I was 0-for-34 before I got a hit—but nobody knew I was second in the league that year in pinch-hits. Pete Ward of Chicago was first."

"I've had bad breaks," Scheinblum said, "but that doesn't matter. I'm here. Look at all the guys in the minors who were all-state in three sports and still never got beyond Double-A. These are the best athletes in the world."

He remembers his rookie pro season.

"They promised me if I had a good year I'd get promoted. I hit .309 and got sent down the next year to a lower classification."

Scheinblum recalls his only major league home run prior to this season. The same day, July 20, 1969, man landed on the moon.

That 1969 start with Cleveland, though, is what made his chest expand and brought the uplift to his shoulders.

"0-for-34. They looked it up. Nobody has ever gone longer than that without a hit at the start of a season. Somebody else and Willie Mays were in the mid-20s once."

"It'll take some kind of hitter to break that record," Scheinblum said. Then he burst out laughing.

Thoroughbreds set for Pocono Downs

WILKES-BARRE — Thoroughbred racing opens a 69-night stand under Shamrock Racing Assn. at Pocono Downs Thursday and this year, for the first time in Pennsylvania, children 10 and over will be permitted to attend the "Sport of Kings."

The betting age has been lowered from 21 to 18.

The new state law opening the gates at parimutuel tracks to minors — providing they are accompanied by an adult — becomes effective this week for thoroughbred racing. Similar legislation was passed for harness racing earlier this month.

But, Shamrock's big news is the "Big Triple" (or trifecta) which will be introduced to area fans. To win the "Big Triple," a better must elect the first three finisher in correct order.

According to Jim Durkin Jr., Shamrock's executive vice president and general manager, there will be "big Triple" wagering on the ninth race only. While it will be a three dollar wager, fans may also "box" three selections at a special $18 window.

Durkin said that in addition to the "Big Triple" there will be quinela and exacta wagering on the second through eighth races. On Friday and Saturday evenings — when there are 10-race programs — there will be quinela and exacta on the 10th.

Racing Secretary Jim Picarillo has received a record number of stall requests for Shamrock's fourth season of operation and said he's already put up the "no vacancy" sign in the barn area since all 1,200 stalls have been accounted for.

Heading the vanguard of returning horsemen is Pete Maxwell, Elk City, Okla., conditioner who'll ship in 26 head from Blue Bonnets in Canada.

European free trade area will be world's largest

For that reason, the negotiations have been tough and detailed. Much of them have centered around "rules of origin" to keep American textiles, for instance, from entering Sweden over a low tariff and then zipping on dutyfree to Germany. The rules of origin in general say that a member of the free trade area must have contributed a certain percentage to any item before it can escape tariffs.

Other disputes have centered on the so-called "sensitive items," like Australian steel, Finnish paper and Swiss clocks. In each case, Common Market industries feared too much competition from the EFTA countries and demanded special safeguards, including

In the case of Finnish paper the Common Market insisted that tariffs be dismantled over 11 years instead of five to give European papermakers time to absorb the competitive shock.

Finland objected to this on grounds that paper exports form a vital part of its economy. But in the end it had to accept the market's deadline, softened only by a slightly higher tariff because without it, Finland would be locked out of Western European markets altogether.

The formation of the free trade area has upset the United States, which feared it would be shut out of traditional markets by new

The treaty will obligate the EFTA and Common Market nations to eliminate their tariffs against one another's products—with a few exceptions—during the next five years. Washington, therefore, protested the formation of the area when negotiations began.

Coming hard on the heels of the Nixon administration's tough bargaining over the dollar last year, the protest stirred hard feelings not only within the Common Market but in such EFTA neutrals as Finland and Austria, which sees across to Western markets as their only alternative to dependence on Russia.

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — We were recalling Radio City Music Hall and its history the other day but we didn't get to the opening. Not just one theater was built — but two. The Music Hall cost $12,000,000; the smaller theater, $4,000,000. The latter came in at some $4,000,000 under its budget; for it was planned in '29, and the Depression ravaged labor costs, as in a capitalist's dream, adjusted themselves drastically downward. And on Dec. 27, 1932, the most resplendent Opening Night in the history of show business was held. Everyone was there from Mayor Jimmy Walker, soon to walk a plank to Europe in municipal disgrace but then the most graceful man in the history of politics, on down to the producer of the stage show, Leon Leonidoff, and the creator of The Rockettes, Russell Markert.

No movie was to be shown. Strictly stage shows, gigantic in their technology and casts. That Dec. 27, 1932 Inaugural Production was a blockbuster: its stars were Weber & Fields, the Martin & Lewis or Rowan & Martin of their considerably more artistically successful day; and Ray Bolger. DeWolf Hopper recited "Casey at the Bat," another wildly popular performer now perhaps recognized as the final husband of the late Hedda Hopper, tho we suspect today's younger readers will ask "Who's she?" So forget Hedda; forget DeWolf Hopper.

There were The Wallendas, a circus star-act swinging proscenium-high for the top-balcony trade. Tito Ruffo, operatic basso, rattled Alpan rafters. "Doc" Rockwell, one of the finest-ever, funniest vaudeville solo acts brought his Down East accent and all-points lunacy to that opening bill. Doc, and is he still alive and clowning up in his beloved Maine? Had personal tragedies not of his planning in his sunset seasons... He did a mock-professor turn using a fruitless banana stalk as the pseudo-skeleton for his anatomy lesson. It was an hilarious interlude between arias and trapeze dazzling and ideal contrast to the historically too-early presentation of Martha Graham and her artily stylized troupe of posturizing modern dancers.

But that all in-person opening bill was unique. All-stage shows as a Music Hall policy ended. The public did not cotton to them, nor even silk: Movies celluloided into the breach and success whammed into the 6,250-seat amphitheater never to be diverted.

Ann Landers

Wrong role

Dear Ann Landers: I'm only 17 years old so of course nobody in this dumb family listens to me. But I know something is wrong and if you print my letter and your answer, Aunt Millie will surely see it because she quotes you all the time.

Aunt Millie has been divorce-ed for three years. Her son is six years old. The boy's father left the country and with luck he'll never come back. He was no good.

Aunt Millie's son is a very pretty kid — looks more like a girl than a boy. His hair is long (gorgeous blonde curls) and his mother puts ribbons in it and makes up his face when company comes over. Last week she bought him some organdy pinafores and took pictures of him in his girly outfit.

The child acts like a girl and I see real trouble ahead. I mentioned it to my mother and she said, "He'll outgrow it." She also told me to mind my own business.

What are the chances for this boy growing up to be a normal male? Worried

Dear Worried: Very slim. His mama obviously wants a girl, and her son is going to see to it that she isn't disappointed. If someone can talk some sense into your Aunt Millie's head soon and get that boy to a therapist, he might be salvaged — provided Mama gets some therapy too.

Hates shorts

By Jean Adams

SHORT PANTS: (Q.) Every summer my mom makes me wear cut-off jeans. Is there anything you can think of to get her to let me wear long pants? I don't like shorts because only sissy kids wear them and other kids get a big charge out of teasing me.

Like yesterday. "These two girls saw me and one whistled at me and said, 'Hi, Shorty.'" The other girl said, "Wow, look at them short shorts."

14 and Too Old for Shorts in Missouri

(A.) Cut-off jeans are again quite popular for both boys and girls this summer, and most of the boys and girls I know do not think of them as sissy.

If you are uncomfortable in short pants, however, you should not be required to wear them. Talk to your mother about how you feel.

GOSSIP: (Q.) What do you do when one of your so-called friends is real sweet to your face but then, when your back is turned, she gossips about you?

Sweet and Sour in Pennsylvania

(A.) You cannot do much about someone who gossips behind your back except to recognize that she is not a real friend and you can do without her.
